2. NEW BUSINESS

A. Financial Reports – March 2023

Discussion: K. LaRocca reported that the library received another portion of ad valorem funding on March 30, 2023. We have received 96.8% of what was budgeted for the year. The next portion of State Revenue Sharing should be received this summer. The budget percentage for this point in the year should be 25%. Revenues are at 25.13% and expenditures are at 27.43%. K. LaRocca reviewed the revenues and expenditures and gave explanations for lines that were over or under budget. Most of the lines that are over budget are paid early in the year and will be in balance by December 2023.

The Publication of Legal Notices line continues to be over budget due to longer board meeting minutes that are published in the St. Tammany Farmer. The Office Machine and Equipment Repair line is over budget due to repairs to a disc cleaning machine. Some insurance and claims lines are over budget because they are paid early in the year. The Library Property Insurance line is at zero because we have not yet received the bill from the Parish. The Library In-service Training and Juvenile Programming lines are over budget due to purchasing Ozobots and Ozobot training. Those funds will be reimbursed by the Library Foundation.

Public Comment:

Kevin Marino – Mandeville, LA. Spoke of the cost of working on the amount of Statements of Concern that have been filed. Stated that he emailed the Board suggesting that they quantify the amount of time and money spent on the process by gathering data to show the amount of time and resources that are wasted on the process.

Johanna Miner – Asked if all the information the Board is referring to is on the website. K. LaRocca confirmed that the Board packet is posted on the website. J. Miner stated that the library continues to allow pedophilia and pornography in the children's and teen sections of the library. Stated that her group represents 99% of St. Tammany Parish and they will continue to fight.

Vote: A. Shaw moved to approve the March 2023 Financial Reports. It was seconded by M. Reneau. Roll call vote:

Airey – Yes Butler – Absent Reneau – Yes Shaw – Yes Taylor – Yes

Motion carried.

B. Director's Report

Discussion: K. LaRocca reported that the Parish Procurement Department opened the quotes for the South Slidell roof replacement project. We are waiting to hear which roofing company received the contract. The Maintenance Department moved out of the Annex building on Highway 36. They are working out of a small satellite office at the Slidell Branch and out of their trucks. Work at the new Annex building on Commercial Way has begun. Lockstep Technology Group performed an internal penetration test on our data security and commended the I.T. Department for its work to maintain a secure environment. They offered a few recommendations that the I.T. Department will be implementing.

Staff offered outreach and promoted the library to the following organizations and events: Northshore Food Bank, Kiwanis of Greater Covington's Youth Wellness Fair, The Lake and The Highway radio stations, St. Tammany Commission on Families, and Junior League's Girls Health Day at Lakeview Hospital. Children's librarians performed Storytime at the following schools: Fontainebleau Children's Academy, Kidz Klubhouse, and Kinder Haus Montessori. Reference librarians offered the following outreach classes: Northshore Leadership Senior-to-Senior Tech Help at the Slidell COAST Center, Tech Talk orientation for Seniors at Northshore High School, and Tech Time at the Abita Springs Branch. Byron Holdiman, Genealogy Librarian, held the following genealogy programs: French Influence and Genealogy Time at various branches.

The library is promoting Food for Fines in celebration of National Library Week. One dollar will be waived from library fees for every nonperishable food item donated. The food will be donated to the Northshore Food Bank, the Samaritan Center, and First Baptist Church of Slidell. Staff attended the Summer Reading Challenge Workshop, various committee meetings, training sessions, and webinars.

The library's yearly audit is complete with no findings reported. This is the first year that entities in St. Tammany Parish are part of the state-wide agreed-upon procedures. We have previously been tested in two or three categories, but now are tested in all categories at the same time.

We have received 19 public records requests since the beginning of November 2022 and eight of those requests are currently outstanding. The requests consist of extensive email searches that are in line for redaction. A combination of electronic and paper documents will need to be sorted and organized to ensure completeness of the records.

To date, the library has received 203 Statements of Concern on 163 titles since August 2022. Library staff continue to read titles, hold meetings, and make recommendations. The remaining Statements of Concern are still pending review. The Board will be deciding on four more titles at the next board meeting on May 22, 2023.

Renewed contracts: Uniti phone services, Bibliocommons BiblioSuggest for patron suggestions on our website, SHI cyber security and Solar Winds ticket system renewal, Transformyx for cloud security, New York Times Online, and New England Historic Genealogical Society Membership.

K. LaRocca reviewed the March 2023 and year-to-date service statistics. K. LaRocca noted the State Library Report statistics from 2022. B. Taylor asked about the number of library branches and support locations. K. LaRocca responded that there are 12 library branches, which consists of six small branches and six large branches located throughout St. Tammany Parish. Large branches have longer hours and are open 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Small branches are open Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. They are open on Wednesdays from 12 p.m. to 8 p.m. K. LaRocca stated that there are also two support locations, which are the Annex and the Administration building. The Annex houses the Technical Services and Maintenance Departments. The Administration building houses various departments of library administration.

B. Taylor asked about the number of public service hours for last year. K. LaRocca stated that there were 30,200 public service hours for 2022. B. Taylor asked how many full-time and part-time staff are employed. K. LaRocca stated there are 150 staff members; 108 are full-time and 42 are part-time. B. Taylor asked if the library system is responsible for the insurance, utilities, and maintenance of all library buildings. K. LaRocca confirmed that though the library does not own the buildings, we are responsible for all of the costs to operate the library. B. Taylor noted that St. Tammany Parish Library is one of the top six library systems in the state by size.

A. Shaw asked if all positions are filled. B. Geiger responded that there are two open full-time positions and four part-time positions. T. DiMaggio stated that all librarian positions are filled.

Public Comment: There was no public comment.

C. Rules and Regulations Update – Section 407 Challenged Materials

T. DiMaggio reviewed the update to Section 407 Challenged Materials in the Rules and Regulations manual. The Board was provided copies of the original, revised, and final policy. Due to the number of multiple Statements of Concern that are submitted on one title, the Rules and Regulations committee researched other libraries and found that it is not uncommon to have time limitations set for how often a single title can be challenged within a certain period of time.

The committee revised the section to introduce a time limit on any new Statement of Concern for a specific title, program, or display topic after the Board makes a decision concerning that title, program, or display. The revision is as follows: “The decision on a Statement of Concern about specific materials, programs, or displays will remain in effect for five years. Within this five-year period, complainants submitting a new Statement of Concern on a decided title, program, or display shall receive a copy of the Board’s current decision.”

Public Comment:

Roxanne Newman – Mandeville, LA. Agreed with the revision of Section 407. Asked for the policy to be amended to remove the requirement that books will be kept behind the circulation desk during the challenge process. Stated it is a violation of the First Amendment and is known as red flagging.

Rachel Rhodes – Mandeville, LA. Thanked the Board. Agreed with the revision of Section 407. Read her transgender daughter’s speech aloud. Stated that removing books based on their content is a violation of freedom of speech and is a dangerous step towards creating a society based on ignorance and fear. Spoke of transphobia, homophobia, and history repeating itself.

Candice Mallard – Stated that five years is a long time and wishes the Board would reconsider the time limit. Stated that books that sexualize, groom, and steal children’s innocence are there to entice them into perversions. Stated it is more dangerous than filling the children’s section with razor blades, needles and knives. Accused the Director and Board of subverting parents’ decisions, indoctrinating children, normalizing, and promoting alternative lifestyles.

Kevin Marino – Mandeville, LA. Gave a copy of proposed policy changes to the Board and library administration. Stated that challenged materials should stay on the shelves. Spoke about First Amendment violations. Suggested creating a monetary fee for filing excess amounts of Statements of Concern. Stated that the group is abusing the system.

Rebecca Steele – Folsom, LA. Stated that she grew up not represented and feels that positive representation saves lives. Stated that parents can end up harming their children by not giving them the chance to be who they are, which could cause children to take their own lives. Stated that requiring a parent to give access to certain books is not the best way because many of the parents do not find it acceptable.

Julie Vitrano – Mandeville, LA. Stated she is disappointed in the library’s decision to keep books featuring radical gender ideology on the shelves. Stated it is purposeful targeting of children with an ideology based on fantasy and deception that targets developing minds. Mentioned the following titles specifically: I Am Jazz, Julian Is a Mermaid, My Rainbow, and When Aiden

Became a Brother. Stated she does not want her tax dollars going towards a blatant political movement.

Lawrence de Quay – Slidell, LA. Stated he consulted with an attorney with expertise in constitutional law and it is a violation of the First Amendment to remove the books from the shelves. Stated that it does not matter who is in the majority, as the Bill of Rights was put in the Constitution to protect the minority from the tyranny of the majority. Stated that books such as Sex Is a Funny Word could help children understand the signs of sexual abuse.

Bonnie Schmidt – Slidell, LA. Concerned with books being taken off the shelves during the review process. Stated she went to the library to find the challenged books and they were on a cart that was rolled out from the back. Asked the Board to amend the rules to place the books back on the shelves until the decision process is complete.

Kim Turner – Mandeville, LA. Spoke about the cost of meetings, resources, and reviews of materials. Suggested that the completed statements should be hand-written to eliminate repeated copying and pasting of complaints. Mentioned the cost of having four police detail officers at the board meeting and noted the metal detector. Stated that if the person who challenges the book cannot be present, the submission should be considered withdrawn.

Lisa Rustemeyer – Covington, LA. Supports the changes to Section 407, but said it needs more work. Stated that whether or not the book was patron-requested should be taken into consideration. Stated that the Accountability Project is causing delays in other library business and has cost time and money. Opposes taking books off the shelves.

Erin Kennedy – Folsom, LA. Stated that this is a moral panic fueled by misinformation and preying on our instinct to protect ourselves from the “other,” which in this case is queer people. Spoke of those who were killed because they were accused of being witches in Salem and other examples of panic throughout history. Stated that children’s input is valuable and suggested that parents ask their children what they are currently reading.

Gary Lacoste – Abita Springs, LA. Stated his concern for the content in certain books, such as illustrations that are sexual. Stated that the books should not be on the shelves for children to see. Stated he does not want to ban them or burn them, just wants them in an appropriate area.

Discussion: There was no discussion by the Board.

Vote: M. Reneau moved to approve the changes made to Section 407 of the Rules and Regulations manual. It was seconded by A. Shaw. Roll call vote:

Airey – Yes Butler – Absent Reneau – Yes Shaw – Yes Taylor – Yes
Motion carried.

D. Rules and Regulations Update – Section 205 Materials Display

T. DiMaggio reviewed the update to Section 205 Materials Display. The Board was provided copies of the original, revised, and final policy. She explained that the purpose of the revision is to clarify who is responsible for creating displays in the branch, the purpose of displays created by library staff, and guidelines for staff to use when creating displays. T. DiMaggio read the final policy aloud.

Public Comment:

Erin Kennedy – Folsom, LA. Referenced a comment made at a previous meeting from a representative of Slidell who suggested creating a communal Board who could screen books for displays. Stated that library staff are best qualified for such screening, as they are familiar with maintaining the shelves, collections, assessing items for disrepair, and general everyday handling of library materials.

Roxanne Newman – Mandeville, LA. Expressed concern with displays reflecting “all viewpoints on a given subject where appropriate.” Stated that it could lead to the inclusion of Mein Kampf in a Holocaust remembrance display or books about the alleged benefits of slavery during Black History month. Stated there has to be objective criteria to determine what materials are included or excluded. Stated she trusts the current staff and library leadership, but is concerned about the long-term endurance of the policy with future staff and leadership.

Nadia Slisarenko – Covington, LA. Asked that the Board revise the statement about “striving to include a wide spectrum of opinions and viewpoints” for displays. Stated the statement favors opinion over fact and could be inadvertently or intentionally misused. Stated that the statement “all viewpoints on a given subject where appropriate” is vague and open to misuse.

Johanna Miner – Stated that she asked the library in June 2022 about displays and how they were chosen, but was never answered. Referenced the displays being chosen by staff and asked if the staff are young or old. Stated she is not asking for banning or censoring, and this is not about transgender or LGBTQIA people. Stated it is about protecting the innocence of children. Stated transgender books should not be on display in the children’s, teen, or young adult sections.

Jamie Segura – Covington, LA. Stated that a display during Pride Month started this disaster. Requested the discontinuation of all displays at every library for all holidays and dates of historical or religious events. Suggested only having displays to promote what is in the library. Spoke of the separation of church and state in the First Amendment.

Ruth Terry Sipos – Abita Springs, LA. Stated that displays are a compelling hook that grabs patrons passing by them in the library. Stated her concern with how hard it is to accommodate everyone and called it a slippery slope.

Kevin Marino – Mandeville, LA. Supports the changes to the section, but is concerned about the “all viewpoints” statement as well. Stated he agrees with the previous comments and thinks it should be removed. Stated that people are concerned about their children seeing certain books, but the library already has a policy that states children nine and under need to be accompanied by an adult. Spoke of the mental health of LGBTQ teens and access to resources for that are crucial.

Discussion: J. Airey stated that he likes the first part of the policy that states the procedure for approving displays, but the remainder of the policy has some repeated language. K. LaRocca noted that the Rules and Regulations Manual is a “living” document that is updated frequently and changes can be made as needed. M. Reneau stated that feelings or comments about some subjects may spur hatred. She stated that if the comments or viewpoints reflect an attitude of hatred, injustice, or intolerance, she would consider those attitudes not appropriate. She added that comments on that subject should not be part of the display. A. Shaw asked about displays of new materials. K. LaRocca explained that new material displays are not curated in any way and are just newly purchased items. One third of new books are patron-requested. There was discussion about new book displays in large and small branches.

Vote: M. Reneau moved to table the update to Section 205 Materials Display to a future meeting to allow more time for consideration. It was seconded by A. Shaw. Roll call vote:

Airey – Yes Butler – Absent Reneau – Yes Shaw – Yes Taylor – Yes

Motion carried.

E. Adoption of the Strategic Plan

K. LaRocca reviewed the final draft of the strategic plan for the Board’s consideration of adoption. The draft includes the library’s first strategic plan, new mission and vision statements, and goals. The process of drafting the plan was estimated to take six to nine months, but due to COVID-19, Hurricane Ida, and the rise of concerns surrounding library resources, the process has taken two years.

The goals, mission, and vision came from stakeholder engagement and were adjusted based on feedback from the Board and Strategic Planning Committee. K. LaRocca stated that these goals are purposefully broad, as we are working in and adapting to tumultuous times. The plan is more of a GPS rather than a road map. If adopted, library staff will work on yearly action plans that will help us achieve the goals and allow us to adapt to the environment as necessary. The action plans will consist of all the information gathered during the process. Information was gathered from over 35 focus groups as well as surveys completed by staff, the Library Board, and the community. K. LaRocca thanked the staff who led the focus groups.

Public Comment:

Lisa Rustemeyer – Covington, LA. Stated she is excited for the strategic plan to come to fruition. Appreciates outreach services that have been offered and is looking forward to the expansion of those services. Enjoyed the Harp concert at the Covington Branch recently.

Discussion: B. Taylor thanked the staff for conducting the focus group sessions, which provided helpful feedback for the consultants to develop a plan to help guide us through the next five years. The consultants also conducted 16 one-on-one interviews with key stakeholders in the community. She stated that this is the first strategic plan that St. Tammany Parish Library has had and she looks forward to wonderful things for the future.

M. Reneau stated that the plan is very comprehensive and is an enhancement for all of the residents of the community. Stated that the public library is designed to meet the needs of every member of the community with resources made available to them.

Vote: A. Shaw moved to approve the adoption of the strategic plan. It was seconded by M. Reneau. Roll call vote:

Airey – Yes Butler – Absent Reneau – Yes Shaw – Yes Taylor – Yes
Motion carried.

F. Resolution regarding maintaining the current millage rate for 2024

Discussion: K. LaRocca reported that the Parish Council sets the library’s millage rate each year and we must notify the Parish Government Finance Office by May 5, 2023 of our request for the millage rate for 2023. The St. Tammany Parish Library ad valorem levy is 5.78 mils with a legal maximum of 6.07 mils. This levy was authorized by voters from 2010 through 2024. K. LaRocca explained that the library has not taken the legal maximum over the last four years. Because we have not rolled up to the maximum allowable millage and 2024 is a reassessment year, our millage and maximum millage rates will be adjusted downwards. When reassessments happen in 2024, a new lower legal maximum will be set for the library’s levy so that we will not unduly benefit from the rise in assessments. K. LaRocca noted that the bonds for the Madisonville Branch will be paid off at the end of 2024. K. LaRocca is recommending that we request to maintain the current millage rate for 2023.

Public Comment:

Johanna Miner – Stated she does not feel the library’s millage will be renewed in 2024. Stated that it was “cowardice” for Connie Phillips to be called out at the previous board meeting. Stated that the books that were returned to the shelves last month were all challenged by other residents of the community last year. Quoted a Bible verse. B. Taylor advised J. Miner that her comments do not pertain to the current agenda item. J. Miner called the Board high and mighty politicians who know nothing about God’s justice. B. Taylor again advised J. Miner that her comments did not pertain to the current agenda item. J. Miner continued speaking after being advised twice, therefore her public comment period was ended.

Joan Simon – Covington, LA. Stated that the library is a wonderful institution and she supports maintaining the current millage. Spoke of people who want to destroy the library and noted that it is a national movement fueled by political interests. Thanked the Board for their efforts over the last year.

B. Taylor read the resolution aloud.

Vote: M. Reneau moved to approve the resolution to request maintaining the current millage rate. It was seconded by A. Shaw. Roll call vote:

Airey – Yes Butler – Absent Reneau – Yes Shaw – Yes Taylor – Yes
Motion carried.

D. Friends of the Library Updates

4. Public Comment

Laura Dinapolis – Covington, LA. Stated it is ironic that people are saying that this conflict is not about religion, yet previous speakers said that “God is watching” and God has a millstone for us. Stated that our job as parents is to make sure our kids grow up in a family where they are comfortable being who they are.

Ruth Terry Sipos – Abita Springs, LA. Spoke about putting in an interlibrary loan request on Wednesday at the Abita Springs Branch, and she was very happy that it arrived so quickly on Friday.

Sonnet Ireland – Slidell, LA. Thanked the Board and encouraged them and library staff to persevere. Spoke of the Lafayette library which lost funding and is in a sad state of being at this time. Urged the Board not to give up hope or to be disheartened. Stated that the public is here and supports them.

5. Adjournment

PUBLIC RECORDS REQUESTS

We have received 19 public records requests since the beginning of November 2022. Eight are currently outstanding. The outstanding requests consist of extensive email searches that are in line for redaction and combinations of electronic and paper documents that will need to be sorted and organized to ensure the completeness of the records. Our new file clerk is training on the various library systems needed to pull requested records.

STATEMENTS OF CONCERN

To date, the library has received 203 statements of concern on 163 titles since August 2022. The most recent statement of concern was submitted on April 17, 2023. The library board will be deciding on four titles this evening. Plans are being made for two special meetings to be held in June specifically for book decisions. Library administration is working to confirm a quorum before announcing these dates.

Library staff continue to read titles, hold meetings and make recommendations. The remaining statements of concern are still "pending review."

Library administration has been working to determine the average cost of a Statement of Concern from initial filing to completion of a Board decision. This cost information will be available at the Board meeting.

Statement of Concern about Library Resources

Intellectual freedom in a public library necessitates selecting some materials that may be considered controversial by some individuals or groups. Reasons often cited for materials considered offensive include use of profanity, divergent viewpoints, controversial authors, sexual content, and depictions of violence and criminal acts. The acquisition of such materials does not imply approval or endorsement of their contents. The selection criteria used by the St. Tammany Parish Library must remain broad and flexible in order to provide a collection that supports the broad range of interests and diverse backgrounds of the citizens of St. Tammany Parish.

I was five

he had the smell of starvation on his lips which he picked up from his father feasting on his mother at 4 a.m.

He was the first boy to teach me my body was for giving to those that wanted that I should feel anything less than whole

8 The illustration on this page depicts a naked woman sitting with her legs open with the words "you have been taught your legs are a pit stop for men that need a place to rest a vacant body empty enough for guests but no one ever comes and is willing to stay". The words are written over the pubic region of the illustration.

you point to the spot between its legs the one he fingered out of you like a confession

15 he guts her with his fingers like he's scraping the inside of a cantaloupe clean

20 you plough into me with two fingers and I am mostly shocked. It feels like rubber against an open wound. I do not like it. You begin pushing faster and faster. But I feel nothing. You search my face for a reaction so I begin acting like the naked women in the videos you watch when you think no one's looking. I imitate their moans. Hollow and hungry. You ask if it feels good and I say yes so quickly it sounds rehearsed, but the acting. You do not notice.

he whispers into my ear

I can think of better ways to use that mouth

it's your voice that undresses me

my name sounds so good french kissing your tongue

you wrap your fingers around my hair and pull when your mouth is kissing not my mouth but other places. My legs will split apart out of habit. And that's when. I pull you in. welcome you. Home.

41 I will smile. Throw my head back. Arch my body like a mountain you want to split in half. Baby lick me.

Like your mouth has the gift of reading and I'm your favorite book. Find your favorite page in the soft spot between my legs and read it carefully. Fluently.
Vividly. Don't you dare leave a single word untouched. And I swear my ending will be so good. The last few words will come. Running into your mouth. And when you're done. Take a seat. Cause it's my turn to make music with my knees pressed Sweet baby. This. Is how we pull language out of one another with the flick of our tongues. This is how we have the conversation.

45 he only whispers I love you as he slips his hands down the waistband of your pants

47 she will then try to make love to your body. But she will never lick, caress, or suck like me.

48 you have spent enough nights with his manhood curled inside your legs to forget what loneliness feels like

52 you must have known you were wrong when your fingers were dipped inside me searching for honey that would not come for you

54 even when you undress her you were searching for me I am sorry I taste so good when the two of you make love it is still my name that rolls off your tongue accidentally

55 The illustration on this page depicts a woman's nude buttocks while she is standing in front of a shirtless man whom is at her waist level.

Shelf Awareness (06/28/2016):

Rupi Kaur's Milk and Honey is a collection of prose and poetry that explores themes of silence, abuse, womanhood, family, connections and personal power. Kaur divides the work into four sections--hurting, loving, breaking, and healing--that mirror the poet's growth. In the section "the hurting," Kaur explores the idea of otherness within oneself, how one cannot be at home in one's own body and how so many experiences affirm that to be a woman is undesirable and alien. Her trauma related to alcoholic family members, abuse and rape shape the poet's fraught psyche, leaving a sense of insecurity and confusion that permeates every page. This confusion is directed both toward understanding her place in the world as an individual and her relationships with others.... COPYRIGHT(2016) Shelf Awareness, ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.

Ms. Connie Phillips

Mandeville, LA 70471

Dear Connie Phillips,

Thank you for submitting your Statement of Concern regarding Milk and Honey by Rupi Kaur. Per the St. Tammany Library Board of Control's policies and procedures, this correspondence is to notify you of the recommendation of the library staff committee regarding the material referenced in your Statement of Concern.

Pursuant to La. R.S. § 14:91.11, it is unlawful for any St. Tammany Library to display, exhibit, disseminate, check-out, or otherwise provide any minor anything that constitutes material harmful to minors by law. However, materials are only deemed harmful to minors if all four (4) of the following apply beyond a reasonable doubt:

1. First, the material must exploit, be devoted to, or principally consist of "descriptions or depictions of illicit sex or sexual immorality." To be "descriptions or depictions of illicit or sexual immorality," the material must convey ultimate sex acts, masturbation or excretory functions, lewd exhibition of private areas, sadomasochistic abuse, sexual intimacy via physical acts of private areas, or stimulation of human genitalia.
2. Second, the material must incite, appeal to, or be designed to incite or appeal to "the prurient, shameful, or morbid interest of minors," i.e., a sexual response over and beyond those that would be characterized as normal for a minor.
3. Third, the material must be "offensive to the average adult applying contemporary community standards with respect to what is suitable for minors." These standards are not defined or limited by any specific geographic area.
4. Fourth, the material, when considered in its entirety (including both objectionable and nonobjectionable parts), must lack any "literary, artistic, political, or scientific value for minors." If any of the foregoing requirements are not met, the material is not unlawful under La. R.S. §14:91.11.

Importantly, the statute defines "minor" as "any person under the age of eighteen years." Thus, the last three (3) elements above must be considered in that context, e.g., "The material taken as a whole [must] lack serious literary, artistic, political, or scientific value for [any person

Under this analysis, the staff committee determined that the material at issue in your Statement of Concern does not qualify as unlawfully harmful to minors.

1. The book does contain references to sexual acts and sexual abuse. However, the content is related to emotional feelings rather than primarily sexual content. The purpose of the sexual content is not to arouse. The poems and illustrations show the author/illustrator’s journey and search for a connection between sexual experiences and relationships.
2. The committee found that the text and images did not incite or appeal to the prurient interests of minors. The sexual texts and images illustrate the author’s own experience. They are not erotic. There are not “action” images. The poems that relate to trauma are not prurient.
3. The committee did not find the material to be offensive to the average adult applying contemporary community standards with respect to what is suitable for minors. This book is not appropriate for young children, they will have no frame of reference. However, the poems may be relevant to an older teen’s or adult’s experiences with first relationships.
4. The committee believes the material taken as a whole does not lack serious literary or artistic value for minors. The author is a well known “Insta-poet” and has a huge following on Instagram, especially with older teen girls. The author’s books have sold over 10 million copies and have been translated into over 40 languages. Her latest collection debuted number 1 on bestseller lists across the world. Committee members noted that many young women relate to the author’s experience and are inspired by her poetry. The text is honest and shows real situations in an eloquent way. The collection of poems as a whole would not make sense without the sexual and traumatic content. The collection of poems as a whole show the journey of a young adult learning their boundaries with sex and other people. The book has a high circulation rate at STPL, with 190 circulations of both the print and electronic copies since 2016. The title is held in over 2,618 other public libraries across the country.

When the book was purchased, we seriously considered the subject matter and placed the book in the Adult non-fiction collection. In this collection, only adults and minors whose parents have given them permission to check out adult materials may check out the book. After reviewing the book and discussion, it was determined that, in the opinion of the committee members, the book does not violate the statute, and the book is shelved in the appropriate section of the library.

While we recognize that some may find the material in question not suitable for their family, that alone does not render it unlawful and does not warrant censoring the public at large from accessing and/or checking out the material. Parents are the ultimate deciders of which books and media their children will consume. At the same time, we do acknowledge that this book may not be in line with the values of all families in the Parish. The purchase of any item by the St. Tammany Parish Library is not an affirmation of the content of the item, and each family in our Parish has the right and responsibility to make decisions regarding what their own children will read or hear.

The committee's report and recommendation will be made available to the St. Tammany Library Control Board, which shall make the ultimate determination based thereupon at a special meeting scheduled on May 1st, 2023, at 6:30 pm at the St. Tammany Parish Council Chambers where it will be on the agenda. At that meeting, you will have an opportunity to address the Board for 5 minutes.

Regardless of the outcome, we hope you will recognize the important role that a public library plays in a free and open democratic society as a neutral resource for everyone.

Respectfully,

Kelly LaRocca, Director

Statement of Concern about Library Resources

Intellectual freedom in a public library necessitates selecting some materials that may be considered controversial by some individuals or groups. Reasons often cited for materials considered offensive include use of profanity, divergent viewpoints, controversial authors, sexual content, and depictions of violence and criminal acts. The acquisition of such materials does not imply approval or endorsement of their contents. The selection criteria used by the St. Tammany Parish Library must remain broad and flexible in order to provide a collection that supports the broad range of interests and diverse backgrounds of the citizens of St. Tammany Parish.

The title

4. Did you review the entire item? If not, what sections did you review?

I reviewed several of the sections. This book has no place in a public library. It is very difficult for me to read this trash. Our children do not need to be reading this sexual content. This type of literature is nothing but trash. IF adults want to read this that's fine but my tax dollars should not be paying for this.

5. What course of action do you recommend in regard to this resource?

remove all books from the public library that has this content in it. Stop pandering to perverts. Provide descent reading material for our children in a safe and loving enviroment.

6. Please state your reasons for making this recommendation. To what in the resource do you object? Please be specific: cite pages, scenes or sections. Consider commenting on the resource as a whole, as well as being specific on the matters which concern you.

REVIEWS

Shelf Awareness (06/28/2016):

Rupi Kaur's Milk and Honey is a collection of prose and poetry that explores themes of silence, abuse, womanhood, family, connections and personal power. Kaur divides the work into four sections--hurting, loving, breaking, and healing--that mirror the poet's growth. In the section "the hurting," Kaur explores the idea of otherness within oneself, how one cannot be at home in one's own body and how so many experiences affirm that to be a woman is undesirable and alien. Her trauma related to alcoholic family members, abuse and rape shape the poet's fraught psyche, leaving a sense of insecurity and confusion that permeates every page. This confusion is directed both toward understanding her place in the world as an individual and her relationships with others.... COPYRIGHT(2016) Shelf Awareness, ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Her latest collection, Home Body, debuted #1 on bestseller lists across the world. As she has done in all things from the very beginning, Rupi self-produced Rupi Kaur Live, the first poetry special of its kind, which debuted on Amazon Prime Video in 2021. Rupi's work touches on love, loss, trauma, healing, femininity, and migration. She feels most at home when creating art, performing her poetry onstage, and spending time with family and friends.

Dear Ms. Smith,

Thank you for submitting your Statement of Concern regarding Milk and Honey by Rupi Kaur. Per the St. Tammany Library Board of Control's policies and procedures, this correspondence is to notify you of the recommendation of the library staff committee regarding the material referenced in your Statement of Concern.

The author is a New York Times best selling author, is a well known "Insta-poet" and has a huge following on Instagram . Since its publishing in 2015, the book has sold more than 4.5 million copies, and has been translated into more than 40 languages. The book has had a high circulation, with 190 circulations since 2016. It is held in over 2,618 other public libraries across the country.

This book is not appropriate for young children or even young teens. However, older teens and adults may find the poetry relevant to their experience with first relationships. The library recognized the mature subject matter and content of this book and, upon purchase, placed it into the Adult Non-Fiction collection.

The committee found that the book is about the writer's emotional journey in relationships. It is not eroticism. The illustrations portray the author/illustrator's experience. They are not "action" images. Their purpose is not to arouse. The parts relating to trauma have a purpose which is not prurient but to portray a journey of a young adult learning their sexual and emotional boundaries with other people.

You asked specifically that we "remove all books from the public library that has this content in it." After reviewing the book and discussion, it was determined that, in the opinion of the committee members, the book should be retained and it is shelved in the appropriate section of the library.

While we recognize that some may find the material in question not suitable for themselves or their family, that alone does not warrant censoring the public at large from accessing and/or checking out the material. Parents are the ultimate deciders of which books and media their children will consume. At the same time, we do acknowledge that this book may not be in line

7. In its place, what materials would you recommend on this topic?

No need to replace it; Put it in a request only section. It is a controversial topic and does; a mature topic. It pushes the ALA ideology of love is love etc. Love is love and lust is lust. This is a prime example the library attempting to confusing small children about their sexuality as though that is the norm. It is not the norm. It is an anomaly and should be put in the request only section but alas there is no section like that in our library; however, the complaint is still submitted.

If you tell anybody, then they'll want to play our tickly game, too. It won't be special anymore." I was five. I wanted to be special. 18 I didn't tell anybody that this man lay me down in the back of his work van, took my pants down, and touched me there. But that's not the reason I didn't tell. I didn't tell because at age five, I had no idea this was wrong. 19 I asked him if he could make a doll bed out of the box, and he said, "Sure. But first, I want to play with you, okay?" Play with me? Sure! I nodded happily. "But it's a secret," he said. "You can't tell anybody, or they'll want to play, too." A secret? Oh, boy! He picked me up, set me on the floor of the van, pushed me back, and took off my pants. They were shorts, actually. ...He had a cigarette clamped in the corner of his mouth as he put his hand between my legs and rubbed. "Does that tickle? Does that feel good?" he asked. ...He gave me a little pat on the leg, put my clothes back where they belonged, and lifted me up. "Remember, you can't tell anybody. This is our secret." ...I remember eventually seeing a pediatrician because it hurt every time I peed. 22 I told Brian, "They're mad at Billy's dad for tickling me down there." I pointed between my legs, and both moms nearly passed out. 27 "Wow, I'll bet your nipples are as big as silver dollars!" Michael proclaimed as he stood behind me in line at the diving board. ...By that time- at the ripe old age of barely thirteen- I had heard it all. ...The hallways in my junior high school during passing period were some of the most naked fully-clothed moments of my life. Boys' overtly sexual comments- often accompanied by "accidental" brushes, grabs, and gropes- were often the burden of early-developing girls like me. 37 I wish I could say that there was never a time in my life where I felt out of place or unwanted because of my race, but unfortunately for me (and many other people of color, I'm sure), that's not the case. 38 I was very aware of the distinct differences between me and my White neighbors across the street or my Filipino neighbors next door. 42 Yes, the Barbie conversation with my mom hinted at the idea that we, as a Black race, were inferior to White people- the fact that society expected me to play with a doll that didn't represent what I looked like on the outside was a flashing neon sign foreshadowing the hidden racism I would have to endure as I grew older- but it wasn't until someone call me a nigger that I actually felt like less of a

Page Content person, just because I was born with a little more melanin in my skin than some people would have liked. 43 She was shunned by the Black community, who said she was a mutt- that her White side made her too White to hang out with them- and out cased by the White kids, who didn't believe her that she, as a half-Black person, was smart enough to be in the honors class. 44 I wasn't made fun of by the Black kids because I "acted White" and "talked White,"... 46 As Shay put it, the guys were pulling out their penises and putting the in my butt and back as we danced. Whenever I'd satisfied them enough to reach their climax, they'd spray their secretions on my back and leave, making room for the next guy to dance with me. 46 "Too Whit to know better," one of the girls said with a laugh as she washed her hands. 51 Misogyny and sexism seemed a part of almost every interaction. As I got older, I cringed at the constant comments men made about women's bodies, their obsession with breasts, and the derogatory terms they used to talk about women. 72 During my first year o high school, I realized that gay women were considered inherently erotic. It's not noticeable at first, the idea that queer relationships exist- for some people- purely for the pleasure of erotic gaze. 73 I didn't want the recognition of my bisexuality to mean that those things were anything other than acts of friendship. ...Gay women are constantly told that there love is purely sexual, a show put on for the eyes of others. ..Queerness is constantly fetishized by television and film despite being demeaned by the people who write the characters. 77 In case you, reader, don't know what it means, it's a turn of phrase used to describe a serial harasser- usually a *cis man- who's never been officially outed or reported,... 78 Mr. Mathers liked the chesty girls, you see. ...He wasn't grabbing girls in their chest area or propositioning them for sex in his car. He was a much more subtle bag of gross. He was a woodshop teacher, so he stood over or behind the girls and pressed against them while he taught them. He stared down our shirts while we worked the machinery- shamelessly, even- almost every time. When he talked to us, he didn't look us in the face, but in the boobs. 92 Right on the playground of my elementary school, hands reached down my pants and fingers entered me. Robbing me of an innocent youth. 100 White-passing skin...but ultimately, I was a little black girl, and with that came special rules. Don't act too "white" (even though most of my interests were "white" ones). Don't act too "fast" (and when you're a black girl, any move-rolling your shoulders, shaking your butt when you're dancing, snapping your fingers- is considered "fast"). ...I must have also written some stuff regarding struggling with my identity,

Page Content because eventually, some classmates got a hold of the journal, read it, and decided that I was the class Oreo. I don't know if the meaning still holds, but back then, people used the term "Oreo" to make fun of "black people who act white." 102 Because I was an "Oreo." 103 Maybe I should have "acted my color." 114 Was the rejection borne of feeling that my friend and me-both of color- weren't worthy because we weren't white? ...It wasn't even a half hour into the dance, and I was already exhausted by the weight of my skin color and my gender. 119 My short stint in junior high had already included scalding looks, cultural misunderstandings, microaggressions, being called a P* and a N, people asking if my skin color washed off, if I was brown because I didn't shower, and off-color jokes about the Kama Sutra. Now, I was being subjected to someone's asinine (emphasis on the "ass" in asinine) idea that I was obligated to him for a date because I ingested three sips of his Coke,... 121 They delighted in coming up and asking me, "Hey, Jon said this about you. Is it true you're a stuck-up b* and you're better than everyone else?" ...there was the idea that I should be flattered that he, a white boy, had asked me, a brown girl, out. More than flattered. I should be grateful. 125 Some days, I'm just so tired, exhausted to my bone marrow that these injustices continue to be inflicted on women, minorities, LGBTQ2 people, on anyone who doesn't fit the mold. 129 For one thing, I was addicted to gay porn. That was how I chose to frame it back then- the porn was gay. ...Gayness was still a joke in my tiny hometown- not an identity. 130 According to these guys, the only challenge associated with sex was convincing a girl to do it with you. ...If she was a "fat chick" or a "butterface," your buddies would probably give you shit for it. 131 I'd seen enough gay porn to know what men were supposed to look like naked. Bodies like mine didn't exist within the realm of male desire. ...Wasn't I supposed to be the one begging her for sex? What kind of guy didn't want to score with his hot girlfriend? ...My internet browsing history consisted exclusively of penises, sure, but maybe a real-life vagina was just what I needed to trigger my latent straightness. I pictured myself successfully having sex with Whitney and then bragging about it to all of my guy friends the next day. 132 ...I could finally admit it wasn't just the porn that was gay. ...Eventually we started kissing on his bed. His hands wandered, and I tried not to cringe when they got close to my fleshy problem areas. I was relieved when he stopped to get up and turn off the lights. The darkness calmed my nerves just enough to let him take my clothes off. 133 Dylan put his hands down my pants. I froze. If someone had asked me before that moment what I would have done if

Page Content my boyfriend's best friend took it upon himself to grab my dick, I probably would have said that I'd freak out and tell him to stop. But I didn't. ...Instead, he leaned over and unbuckled my belt. I remained frozen. Shawn started kissing me. Dylan kept touching me and Shawn and himself. It occurred to me that they had probably done this before, which made me sick to my stomach. ...I kissed both of them back as convincingly as possible. ...Eventually, we were all naked. 135 "He has a nice ass." 135 I texted my best friend when I got home: Shawn and I had a threesome tonight! 137 My identity was so wrapped up in the struggle to validate myself against the atmosphere of toxic masculinity and fat-shaming and homophobia that defined my childhood. ...Would I have seized the opportunity to have sex with Whitney? ...How many of his friends' sexual boasts were just positive spins on negative experiences? 146 The ones who palmed girls' butts and remarked on how juicy they were. 147 Uncle J had spotted a vulnerable, traumatized girl, and had used his understanding of her- my- situation to prime me for a sexual relationship. ...It wasn't that I was scared, it just didn't seem that big a deal. By then, I was used to the men at the gas station who leered at my breasts too long, or the uncle who always seemed very concerned about the shortness of my skirts. This incident was just another in a long line that had started happening the moment I started wearing bras- and, if we're being honest, well before that. 154 And there was the time I was walking across a crowded train platform on my way home from school and someone reached up under my uniform skirt and between my legs. 155 ...though I doubt there were too many boys who have had the experience of having some stranger's hand thrust between their legs. 158 It's bad enough that there are so many men who seem to think that sticking their hands up teenage girls' skirts or down their shirts is somehow acceptable, or at least excusable. 163 She was thirteen when she was attacked. Thirteen when she was raped. ...We drank a lot of alcohol and smoked a lot of weed. 165 ...this young girl was picked up by a group of people who were drinking and doing drugs. They gave her a ride, and then one of the men raped her. 166 He was eventually arrested for molesting young boys, but we didn't know that at the time. Rumor has it that the allegations and charges against him eventually led to his suicide in a jail cell. 167 They would stick their hands up under our shirts. Feel our bras. Grab at our boobs.

Page Content 168 They stormed inside, and the three boys turned into one monster, pushing each other on. The monster had six hands. It was angry. Demanding. Six hands grabbed at me. Six of them. "Get her. Grab her." They spoke in short, terse sentences. ...The six-handed monster tried to go a little further than just feeling my boobs, until I ran from them and locked myself in a bathroom. 180 ...I went from being molested by not just one man in my family, but by two. 193 The first time he touched me, I invited more. He showed me things my younger sexual partners didn't know or wouldn't do. ...Then he'd kiss the back of my neck while I was filling molds. Sometimes he'd pull me into the back office for a quickie. 201 The truth is that, according to laws of the time, Bathsheba couldn't say no to her king if he demanded sex from her. The truth is that, according to the laws, it wasn't rape unless the woman was a virgin, which David would have known Bathsheba likely wasn't, because she was married. The truth is that David raped Bathsheba, and after the rape, when she became pregnant, David not only murdered her husband, but then also forced Bathsheba into a relationship with him. She was forced to marry and live with her rapist for the rest of his life. 202 Bathsheba was raped by a man in a position of power over her. 203 The paintings of her hanging in art museums around the world portray her breasts exposed, her naked body being presented to the viewer in a sprawl over the edge of a fountain. 207 A hand job I didn't want to give, to a guy I didn't like. 208 A body that belonged to everyone but me. It belonged to the boy who lived next door to my parents' best friends, who pushed his tongue into my mouth and his hands beneath my T-shirt. (Twelve: there was nothing beneath my T-shirt; my body was still a vast and unshaped plain.) 209 My gender swam back and forth, male and female, everything and nothing. I moved in those waters, easily. Wanting her and loving her was easy. But not the slaps. Not the punches. Not the bites and pinches and vicious twists, my flesh between her forefingers and thumb- her nails, long and sharp. 210 So many people knew that this man bedded me and hit me; that he pulled out my hair and stuck his hands up my skirt in public. ...I finally broke up with the Beast (ran away from him, hid from him) because he hit me and threatened me and put his hands on my throat on a military installation. 212 ...and just let him have what he wanted- a hand job on the steps of the student union. ...At seven, I said I only wanted to see it, but he insisted on so much more. ...It wound black ribbons around my throat and cinched tight beneath my disappointing breasts.

Page Content 221 "Nothing, technically. You've got great boobs, but believe me- a push-up bra never hurts." 222 "...I've been patted and squeezed like an animal at a petting zoo, and one time, a guy offered me a hundred-dollar bill to take off my top." 223 All after groping my butt. 225 "...Made her want to try all this kinky shit in the bedroom," Twin Number One said. "It was awesome." ..."One time she let me handcuff her to the bed, and then I surprised her with some nipple clamps." "How'd she like it?" "Howled like a banshee. I've never cummed so fast in my life." ...TaylorMade squeezed me tighter against his side." I bet Blondie her would look great in nipple clamps. What do you think, boys?" 237 There were no sounds. Manny sat down on the wall, yanked me onto his lap and leaned backward pinning me against his stomach. When I say these two boys were "beefier" than others, I should make note that Manny was literally a giant- the result of some congenital pituitary gland hormone dysfunction. Rylan stood in front of us and tugged at my lime-green-and-white striped Dolfin shorts. I kicked and screamed, and I remember thinking how easy my stretchy shorts could be taken off. Soon those shorts were draped around my ankles. The memory that stands out the most for me is their laughter. Whooping, hollering laughter. The time frame may have been seconds, or minutes. I have no idea. I t felt like hours. I was unsure if my underwear had been dragged down with my shorts. But as I kicked and squirmed, I felt their skin against mine in parts of my body that had never been touched before. 238 "Now I am going to be raped." 255 I was sixteen years old the first time a grown man told me I wasn't worth raping. 256 ...a beautiful starlet whistled at by a crude construction worker who pushed his hard hat up his brow to better take a look at her legs. 264 Until now, I haven't written about the time I was assaulted, at fifteen years old, at 2:00 in an empty high school classroom by a male student. 266 The families of successful white traders became more patriarchal. 268 I suddenly felt D behind me, pressing me into the table. I tried to turn and pull away, saying, "Stop it, D," but I was knocked backward onto the table. D's body was heavy on top of mine as he forced his hand under my sweater. I screamed, "Ge the fuck off me! Goddammit!" His shaved face pressed roughly against mine, while all hundred pounds of me kicked and shoved. It didn't move him an inch. 273 I was sexually assaulted my junior year of high school. 276 He grabbed my hair and forced me to kiss him in the movie theater, even when I tried to push him off me. He called me a tease. 280 The discrimination wasn't overt, but the message was the same: white men get away with what they want. The people in power are still mostly white men, too.

Page Content 292 It seems that there has become a "right way" to be wronged., be a pretty, white, cis-het female; be affected, but not broken; be pissed, but not too pissed; and always be ready to be a spokesperson for a group you never wanted to be part of. 296 After the first time I had sex, I wrote a letter to myself. 298 What happened was that he got angry and slammed me against the bed with his hands around my neck. 300 What I meant was, I let a man fuck me last night and felt powerful because I refuse to hurt over it, which is easier than I let this happen to me. I did this to my body. 302 Good sex isn't lonely, or wordless, or out of reach. It's really pretty simple. It is, This is what I like. It is, Does this feel good? More concrete things. Masturbation is vital. When you're feeling a certain pleasure for the first time, it's going to overwhelm. Reciprocations becomes difficult; so probably, it's a good idea to orgasm on your own before you expect yourself to help someone else.

REVIEWS

Where do our ideas and assumptions about gender come from, and how might they be holding us back? Gravel and Blais--who is transgender--invite young readers to reflect on these questions. The book explains the difference between biological sex and gender identity, teaches about gender inclusive pronouns, and offers a capsule history of gender norms, showing how they have varied cross-culturally and throughout time. Children will also learn about the tough realities of gender stereotyping, gender inequality, gender policing, and homophobia. One double-page spread is devoted to affirming the multitude of gendered family structures that exist. The authors unequivocally make the case for gender diversity and gender parity using concrete, kid-friendly examples. Designed to prompt conversation, the book directly poses questions to readers such as "Do you think all people should be allowed to love whoever they want?" and "Should we feel bad about doing the things we like?" This strategy is mostly effective but at times undermines the potential for emotional resonance. Little attention is paid to social movements oriented around gender issues, although a few individual changemakers, like Malala Yousafzai, are highlighted. Unfortunately, the text often feels like an exercise in preaching to the choir; transphobes and critics of gender ideology aren't likely to be convinced that this rather didactic book holds value for youngsters in their care. Gravel's colorful but not very saturated webcomics-style illustrations have strong visual appeal with their pithy speech bubbles, frameless panels, and interactive elements. An emollient and digestible distillation of complex issues. (Picture book. 4-8) COPYRIGHT(2022) Kirkus Reviews, ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.

Publishers Weekly (01/31/2022):

Collaborating with Blais, who is transgender, author-illustrator Gravel offers an examination of gender stereotypes, employing a series of probing questions and speech bubbles that invite readers to consider gender identity and its attendant connotations: "Look at these pictures. Are some for girls? Are some for boys? Are some for everyone?" (Images include "blue things," "pink things," "makeup," and "trucks.") Definitions and examples of sex, gender identity, pronouns, and more are explained concisely, followed by historical examples of exclusionary laws, rules, and social mores, such as legislature against marriage equality. Brief inclusion of real-life trailblazers--including Sarah McBride, the first transgender woman elected to the state senate--also feature. The book occasionally feels wide-ranging, but Gravel's distinctive bug-eyed cartoons, rendered in pen and ink and digitally, imbue levity. Back matter includes fun facts about gender and clothing. Ages 4-8. (Mar.) Copyright 2022 Publishers Weekly, LLC Used with permission.

School Library Journal (02/01/2022):

PreS-Gr 2--In her signature style, Gravel (What Is a Refugee? and others) and Blais provide an accessible introduction to gender and gender stereotypes. Beginning with smart, open-ended questions, the authors challenge readers to think about gender stereotypes, why they exist, and if they are true or fair. The book progresses to an overview of sex versus gender, complete with helpful visual aids, an exploration of pronouns, and ultimately, a few examples of how gender is treated in different communities. At each step, the authors ask readers what they think and how they feel. This engagement, coupled with the accessible presentation of the material, makes for an excellent resource. The folks depicted throughout vary in appearance, and include many skin tones, ages, and family structures. A few folks wear hijabs, and two others use wheelchairs. Gravel's illustrative style is wildly appealing, and the comic-style presentation helps to endear the book to readers. A slight weakness is the homogeneity of illustrated body type, though this is not enough to diminish the book's overall value. VERDICT Thoughtful, engaging, and visually bright, this is an excellent addition to any library serving preschool and early elementary ages.--Taylor Worley Copyright 2022 School Library Journal, LLC Used with permission.

Booklist (02/15/2022):

Preschool-Grade 2 Pink things, blue things, fart jokes, princesses. "Are some for girls? Are some for boys? Are some for everyone?" Gravel and Blais, who is transgender, offer simple yet effective open-ended questions that build on one another, allowing children (either on their own or in conversation with caregivers, educators, and others) to consider gender stereotypes and gender identity. A quick biology lesson also acknowledges the difference between sex and gender. Gravel's softly shaped, endearing comics feature kids and adults with various skin colors, hair styles, clothing, and physical abilities and speech bubbles stating their thoughts and affirmations. The text progresses to related topics on pronouns, diversity in families and loving relationships, and respect. In addition, it briefly looks at gender inequities in the workplace (e.g., men not encouraged to work in caregiving roles) and changemakers (e.g., Sarah McBride, a transgender state senator in Delaware). A final "fun facts" spread presents light trivia about gender and clothing in history (e.g., countries where men wear skirts). A gentle way to introduce or reaffirm gender identity in young readers. Ms. Connie Phillips

[REDACTED]
Mandeville, LA 70471

Dear Connie Phillips,

Thank you for submitting your Statement of Concern regarding Pink Blue and You by Elise Gravel. Per the St. Tammany Library Board of Control’s policies and procedures, this correspondence is to notify you of the recommendation of the library staff committee regarding the material referenced in your Statement of Concern.

Pursuant to La. R.S. § 14:91.11, it is unlawful for any St. Tammany Library to display, exhibit, disseminate, check-out, or otherwise provide any minor anything that constitutes material harmful to minors by law. However, materials are only deemed harmful to minors if all four (4) of the following apply beyond a reasonable doubt:

1. First, the material must exploit, be devoted to, or principally consist of “descriptions or depictions of illicit sex or sexual immorality.” To be “descriptions or depictions of illicit or sexual immorality,” the material must convey ultimate sex acts, masturbation or excretory functions, lewd exhibition of private areas, sadomasochistic abuse, sexual intimacy via physical acts of private areas, or stimulation of human genitalia.
2. Second, the material must incite, appeal to, or be designed to incite or appeal to “the prurient, shameful, or morbid interest of minors,” i.e., a sexual response over and beyond those that would be characterized as normal for a minor.
3. Third, the material must be “offensive to the average adult applying contemporary community standards with respect to what is suitable for minors.” These standards are not defined or limited by any specific geographic area.
4. Fourth, the material, when considered in its entirety (including both objectionable and nonobjectionable parts), must lack any “literary, artistic, political, or scientific value for minors.” If any of the foregoing requirements are not met, the material is not unlawful under La. R.S. §14:91.11.

Importantly, the statute defines “minor” as “any person under the age of eighteen years.” Thus, the last three (3) elements above must be considered in that context, e.g., “The material taken as a whole [must] lack serious literary, artistic, political, or scientific value for [any person under the age of eighteen years].” Additionally, if materials that qualify as harmful to minors are not sold, distributed, advertised, or otherwise distributed to minors, it is permissible under the law to have them available for adults to do so, as long as the minors are unable to see, “as displayed,” descriptions or depictions of illicit sex or sexual immorality.”

Under this analysis, the staff committee determined that the material at issue in your Statement of Concern does not qualify as unlawfully harmful to minors.

1. The material is not primarily devoted to the description, display, or depiction of sexual conduct described in La R.S. 14:91.11. One page out of 32 pages has a simple drawing of nude children. However, the images are not lewd, there is no touching. The purpose of the image is to show anatomical differences, not to portray sexual activity. There is no “lust” or sexual expression at all.
2. The committee found that the text and images did not incite or appeal to the prurient interests of minors. Some children may be amused or even embarrassed by the image but it is not designed to appeal to a sexual response in a minor.
3. The committee did not find the material to be offensive to the average adult applying contemporary community standards with respect to what is suitable for minors. The book is designed to be read with a child as it prompts questions. It does contain a viewpoint that might not be shared by all families in our parish. The book does not convey a viewpoint specific to any organization or ideology. The overall theme is acceptance. Some parents might find the book to be inappropriate for their children. However, there are parents in St. Tammany Parish who are interested in discussing this topic with their child. The book shows a variety of people and families, not exclusively transgender or homosexual. Gender is currently part of a national conversation.
4. The committee believes the material taken as a whole does not lack serious literary, artistic, political, or scientific value for minors. The book has scientific/educational value. It is not political. The book presents balanced descriptions of gender roles and stereotypes in history and in modern society. It has factual information. The book is not instructive or persuasive. The committee agreed that this book is a resource for parents and families who need or want to start a conversation with their child about gender.

The book has been on the shelf at STPL for a very short time. STPL owns four copies at Covington, Madisonville, Mandeville, and Slidell. It circulated a total of five times from October-December, 2022 before it was challenged. It is held in Juvenile Non-Fiction in over 600 other public libraries across the country, including Jefferson Parish Public Library and Mobile Public Library (Alabama.) This book is in picture book format but is shelved in the Juvenile Non-Fiction section under call number J305.3 with other books on sociology/gender. Our placement is consistent with our peer library systems.

When the book was purchased the library recognized the topical nature of the book and placed it into children's non-fiction. After reviewing the book and discussion, it was determined that, in the opinion of the committee members, the book does not violate the statute, and the book is shelved in the appropriate section of the library.

While we recognize that some may find the material in question not suitable for their family, that alone does not render it unlawful and does not warrant censoring the public at large from accessing and/or checking out the material. Parents are the ultimate deciders of which books and media their children will consume. At the same time, we do acknowledge that this book may not be in line with the values of all families in the Parish. The purchase of any item by the St. Tammany Parish Library is not an affirmation of the content of the item, and each family in our Parish has the right and responsibility to make decisions regarding what their own children will read or hear.

The committee's report and recommendation will be made available to the St. Tammany Library Control Board, which shall make the ultimate determination based thereupon at a special meeting scheduled on May 1st, 2023, at 6:30 pm at the St. Tammany Parish Council Chambers where it will be on the agenda. At that meeting, you will have an opportunity to address the Board for 5 minutes.

Regardless of the outcome, we hope you will recognize the important role that a public library plays in a free and open democratic society as a neutral resource for everyone.

Respectfully,

Statement of Concern about Library Resources

Intellectual freedom in a public library necessitates selecting some materials that may be considered controversial by some individuals or groups. Reasons often cited for materials considered offensive include use of profanity, divergent viewpoints, controversial authors, sexual content, and depictions of violence and criminal acts. The acquisition of such materials does not imply approval or endorsement of their contents. The selection criteria used by the St. Tammany Parish Library must remain broad and flexible in order to provide a collection that supports the broad range of interests and diverse backgrounds of the citizens of St. Tammany Parish.

2) "Material harmful to minors" is defined as any paper, magazine, book, newspaper, periodical, pamphlet, composition, publication, photograph, drawing, picture, poster, motion picture film, video tape, video game, figure, phonograph record, album, cassette, compact disc, wire or tape recording, or other similar tangible work or thing which exploits, is devoted to or principally consists of, descriptions or depictions of illicit sex or sexual immorality for commercial gain, and when the trier of fact determines that each of the following applies:

(a) The material incites or appeals to or is designed to incite or appeal to the prurient, shameful, or morbid interest of minors.

(b) The material is offensive to the average adult applying contemporary community standards with respect to what is suitable for minors.

29 JUSTICE

Justice is like fairness, only bigger.

Justice means working together so that everyone can share in the good and the hard parts of living.

Justice means that every person and every body matters.

The illustration on this page shows people with protest signs that read "PLAY IS A RIGHT"

60 Nipples can feel very good to touch, but if you pinch them it can hurt!

The illustrations on this page depict exposed breasts and nipples in different views.

61 Like nipples, some people's breasts are sensitive and can feel good when they are touched.

The illustrations on this page depict breasts. There is one image of a full-frontal nude female.

63 Like other holes in our body, the anus is usually very sensitive, which means it can feel good to touch but can also hurt if we are rough with it.

64 The illustrations on this page are zoomed in views of the exposed vulva. There is one image of two hands spreading the labia.

65 The illustrations on this page show hairless labia at the top of the page and two zoomed in images of the vulva including the clitoris and the internal clitoris. The opening to the vagina and the urethra are drawn, but there are not dotted outlines for their internal structures, as was done for the clitoris.

66 The images on this page are of male genitalia in various states of arousal.

67 The illustrations on this page are of male genitalia including a close-up profile image of a penis and scrotum.

68 The illustrations on this page are depictions with implications of a male and a female masturbating. The male is lying in bed with his arms under the covers. There are several white lines radiating out from where his pubic region would be. He has a large smile on his face. A female is outside sitting against a tree with her hand between her legs. She has a large smile on her face and there are several white lines radiating out from her pubic region. There is another girl at the bottom of the page whom is standing up dancing. Her right leg is linked behind her left leg seemingly creating a rubbing effect in her groin area. She too has large smile on her face and there are several white lines radiating out from her body.

71 But having a penis isn't what makes you a boy. Having a vulva isn't what makes you a girl.

The truth is much more interesting than that!

78 There are more than two kinds of bodies, but they call the baby a boy or a girl based on what they see.

This might sound like the end of the story, but really, it's just the beginning.

81 When we are born, a doctor or midwife calls us boy or girl because of what we look like on the outside. They choose a word or label (usually boy or girl, or male or female) to describe our bodies.

But that's based on our outside, our cover, or who they think we are.

What about our whole body, inside and out? What about who we think we are?

83 As we grown into being a kid and then an adult, we get to figure out who we are and what words fit best.

...For most of us, words like boy and girl, or man and woman, feel okay, and they fit. For some of us, they don't.

84 Maybe you're called a boy but you know you're a girl. You know how girls are treated and what they do. That's how you want to be treated and what you want to do.

Maybe you're called a girl but feel you're a boy. You know how boys are treated and what they do. That's how you want to be treated and what you want to do.

85 Maybe you aren't sure, or don't care that much. Maybe you don't feel like a boy or a girl. Maybe you feel like both. Maybe you just need some time to figure it out, without all the boy and girl stuff.

...Part of being a kid is learning what you like, what you don't like, and who you are. That's part of being a grown-up too.

86 "PAY CLOSE ATTENTION TO THE WORDS PEOPLE USE WHEN THEY TALK ABOUT THEMSELVES."

87 "WHAT DO YOU THINK ABOUT THE WORDS BOY AND GIRL?"

"DO YOU KNOW ANYONE FOR WHOM THOSE WORDS DON'T FIT?"

106 TOUCHING YOURSELF

The top left illustration on this page, depicts a woman emersed in water in a bathtub with both of her arms resting on the edges of the tub.

The image on the top right of the page depicts the same woman with her left arm in the water angled toward where her pubic region would be. She has a large smile on her face.

The illustration on the bottom right of the page depicts the same woman with blush marks on her cheeks and squiggles around her body along with radiating lines coming out of her body.

107 We also touch ourselves.

We touch ourselves all the time, in all kinds of places, for all kinds of reasons.

Touching yourself I one way to learn about yourself, your body, and your feelings.

You may have discovered that touching some parts of your body, especially in the middle parts, can make you feel warm and tingly.

Grown-ups call this kind of touch masturbation.

Masturbation is when we touch ourselves, usually our middle parts, to get that warm and tingly feeling.

108 The illustration on this page depicts several biodomes with people's names on them. They all have different terrains and landscapes within the biodomes. There is also a young girl sitting at a picnic table with several other people and she has her hand in her skirt, seemingly masturbating as the older woman sitting next to her glares at her and the other kids at the table do not seem to notice her.

109 "DO YOU KNOW IF THERE ARE RULES IN YOUR FAMILY ABOUT TOUCHING YOURSELF? IF THERE ARE RULES, DO THEY MAKE SENSE TO YOU?"

127 The illustration on this page depicts a giant, wavy, pink sculpture with two holes of differing sizes. There is a group of kids staring at the sculpture and the woman is pointing at it saying "THIS SCULPTURE IS CALLED SEXINESS."

138 There's no right or wrong way to have a crush

The illustration on these pages depict characters all with very feminine features, staring at each other lovingly. Two of them have thought bubbles which show other effeminate characters.

REVIEWS

Kirkus Reviews (04/15/2015):

Moving up in target audience from their explanation of reproduction, What Makes a Baby (2013), Silverberg and Smyth explore various meanings for the word "sex." In their own ways, Zai, Cooper, Mimi, and Omar respond to information in chapters about bodies, "Boys, Girls, All of Us," touch, language, and "Crushes, Love, and Relationships." With skin tones in unlikely shades (blue! purple! green!) and wildly diverse crowd scenes, chances are good that any reader can identify with someone in these pages. Refreshingly, these crowds are diverse in a way that does not appear assembled by checklist. Lively design, bright, clashing colors, cartoon-style illustrations, comic strips, and plenty of humor support the informal, inclusive approach.

Each chapter ends with questions to think and talk about. The author's respect for different approaches to the subject comes through. No actual sexual activities are described except for masturbation, in the chapter that also deals with "secret touches." The gender chapter tells how gender is assigned but notes "there are more than two kinds of bodies." The character Zai doesn't identify as either boy or girl. Illustrations show body parts of kids and grown-ups (nipples, breasts, bottoms, and parts biologically specific to boys or girls) demonstrating wide variety. Puberty will be addressed in a third title. This carefully thought-out explanation may surprise but should be widely appreciated. (glossary) (Nonfiction.7-10) COPYRIGHT(2015) Kirkus Reviews, ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.

Publishers Weekly (06/22/2015):

Silverberg and Smyth follow What Makes a Baby with a highly visual introduction to sex education for older readers, featuring four characters between the ages of eight and 10 with skin in a rainbow of crayon-box colors. Full-page artwork and comics sequences follow the students as they react to discussions of gender, bodies (including what Silverberg calls "middle parts"), touching, and the emotions that lead to sexual contact; the book stops short of getting into the mechanics of intercourse. Throughout, Silverberg invites readers to consider their own feelings through activities and questions ("Why do you think people want to know if a baby is a boy or a girl?"). Emphasizing the importance of trust, respect, justice, and joy--as well as open communication--it's a thoughtful and affirming exploration of relationships, gender identity, and growing sexual awareness. Ages 7-10. (July)

School Library Journal (03/01/2016):

Gr 2-6--Silverberg and Smyth follow up their book for younger readers, What Makes a Baby (Triangle Square, 2013), with this engaging introduction to gender, bodies, and relationships. A diverse cast of cartoon kids--in terms of appearance, ability, and point of view--explore the multiple meanings of the word sex with their teacher, friends, and family members. There is a heavy emphasis on the importance of thinking for oneself and developing one's own opinions. The language is conversational and accessible, as well as direct, fastidiously accurate, and entirely gender-neutral. Each section ends with conversation-provoking questions, reinforcing the suggestion that the book be read and shared in conversation with a trusted adult. What makes this volume exceptional is its introduction of the subjects of transgender identity, intersex conditions, and masturbation. The quality text is enhanced and brought to life by comics drawn with bold lines on bright, full-bleed pages. Smyth's illustrations are interactive, fun, and edifying, presenting a range of body types and diversity. Despite the title, the topic of sexual intercourse is not covered; but Silverberg prepares readers for this information by introducing concepts such as respect, trust, and joy. VERDICT Exciting, enlightening, and innovative, this book addresses timeless questions about sex for a new generation of kids who are increasingly aware of the broad spectrum of gender and sexual identities.--Clara Hendricks, Cambridge Public Library, MA

This book was way too graphic for anyone under the age of 15. It goes into the nitty-gritty about sex, and give to anyone under age 12 that is asking questions about sex or bodies. I also don't approve of their gender fluidity for the kids. I'd be okay if it talked about gender roles being fluid, but not the gender its

What's the Story?

SEX IS A FUNNY WORD opens with a note to adult readers. And then we meet Zai, Cooper, Mimi, and Omar, all ages 8-10, as they're in class beginning a unit on sex. The teacher says that learning about sex is like a carnival: You can't do it all in one day, and it can be fun, strange, and a little scary. The classmates are shown in various situations that relate to each chapter topic like "What Is Sex?" "Learning About Bodies," "Boys, Girls, All of Us," "Touch," and so forth. Comic strips, two-page scenes, diagrams, and explanatory text work together to show and explain terms and ideas. Discussion questions and activity suggestions end each chapter, making this book suitable for educational settings as well as family reading, and a glossary at the end defines terms that are referred to but not named in the book itself (asexual, transgender, etc.).

Is It Any Good?

Not your typical book about sex for kids, this fun, honest volume covers the topic in new and exciting ways. Sex Is a Funny Word provides a framework of foundational information about bodies, gender, and touch, and then invites young readers and their adults to talk to each other in order to "fill in the blanks" with beliefs, values, and connections to family history, culture, and community. This book isn't actually about sex: It's about providing a foundation for kids to understand sex as a big, multifaceted life experience.

Also notable is the book's lack of jargon -- you won't find identity labels or advanced terms in the text (though there is a useful glossary) -- which means that all the different ways we talk about and define ourselves are available to use in the conversations this book will inspire. The interesting, diverse characters and inclusive language and art mean that every reader will be able to see themselves in this book. Fiona Smyth's thick-line cartoon drawings and bold color choices make for a visually absorbing read. This truly modern and open-ended guide about sex, bodies, and touch will help parents and kid readers alike take a thoughtful, relationship-building path toward growing up.

Ms. Connie Phillips

Dear Ms. Phillips,

Thank you for submitting your Statement of Concern regarding Sex is a Funny Word by Cori Silverberg. Per the St. Tammany Library Board of Control's policies and procedures, this correspondence is to notify you of the recommendation of the library staff committee regarding the material referenced in your Statement of Concern.

Pursuant to La. R.S. § 14:91.11, it is unlawful for any St. Tammany Library to display, exhibit, disseminate, check-out, or otherwise provide any minor anything that constitutes material harmful to minors by law. However, materials are only deemed harmful to minors if all four (4) of the following apply beyond a reasonable doubt:

1. First, the material must exploit, be devoted to, or principally consist of "descriptions or depictions of illicit sex or sexual immorality." To be "descriptions or depictions of illicit or sexual immorality," the material must convey ultimate sex acts, masturbation or excretory functions, lewd exhibition of private areas, sadomasochistic abuse, sexual intimacy via physical acts of private areas, or stimulation of human genitalia.
2. Second, the material must incite, appeal to, or be designed to incite or appeal to "the prurient, shameful, or morbid interest of minors," i.e., a sexual response over and beyond those that would be characterized as normal for a minor.
3. Third, the material must be "offensive to the average adult applying contemporary community standards with respect to what is suitable for minors." These standards are not defined or limited by any specific geographic area.
4. Fourth, the material, when considered in its entirety (including both objectionable and nonobjectionable parts), must lack any "literary, artistic, political, or scientific value for minors." If any of the foregoing requirements are not met, the material is not unlawful under La. R.S. §14:91.11.

Importantly, the statute defines "minor" as "any person under the age of eighteen years." Thus, the last three (3) elements above must be considered in that context, e.g., "The material taken as a whole [must] lack serious literary, artistic, political, or scientific value for [any person under the age of eighteen years].” Additionally, if materials that qualify as harmful to minors are not sold, distributed, advertised, or otherwise distributed to minors, it is permissible under the law to have them available for adults to do so, as long as the minors are unable to see, “as displayed,” descriptions or depictions of illicit sex or sexual immorality.”

Under this analysis, the staff committee determined that the material at issue in your Statement of Concern does not qualify as unlawfully harmful to minors.

1. It does not primarily consist of or is devoted to the sexual acts described in the law. The book does not contain any ultimate sex acts. There are two pages about masturbation and there is a section showing body parts, however the portrayal is not lewd.
2. It does not incite or appeal to or is designed to incite or appeal to the prurient, shameful, or morbid interest of minors. The illustrations, text, and format are meant to catch the interest on a level appropriate for children of puberty age. The images of body parts are not in detail. The images of genitals are focused on without the rest of the body shown. The purpose of showing the variety of genitals is to portray the wide variety of human forms that are considered “normal.”
3. It is not offensive to the average adult applying contemporary community standards with respect to what is suitable for minors. The book has a steady circulation rate at STPL. It is held in Juvenile Non-Fiction in over 1000 other public libraries across the country, including Jefferson Parish Public Library and the Mobile Public Library (Alabama.) Our ownership of the book is consistent with our peer library systems.
4. The material taken as a whole does not lack serious literary, artistic, political, or scientific value for minors. The book has education value as it discusses hygiene and correct medical terms for body parts. It also discusses the emotional and social aspects of first relationships, concepts not often discussed in books for this target age audience. The book has artistic value with colorful and amusing pictures. The unnatural colors of the humans shows universality.

When the book was purchased the library recognized the topical nature of the book and placed it into children’s non-fiction. However, the book is published in “graphic novel” format

After reviewing the book and discussion, it was determined that, in the opinion of the committee members, the book does not violate the statute, and the book should continue to be shelved behind the circulation desk per the directive of the LBOC.

While we recognize that some may find the material in question not suitable for their family, that alone does not render it unlawful and does not warrant censoring the public at large from accessing and/or checking out the material. Parents are the ultimate deciders of which books and media their children will consume. At the same time, we do acknowledge that this book may not be in line with the values of all families in the Parish. The purchase of any item by the St. Tammany Parish Library is not an affirmation of the content of the item, and each family in our Parish has the right and responsibility to make decisions regarding what their own children will read or hear.

The committee's report and recommendation will be made available to the St. Tammany Library Control Board, which shall make the ultimate determination based thereupon at a special meeting scheduled on May 1st, 2023, at 6:30 pm at the St. Tammany Parish Council Chambers where it will be on the agenda. At that meeting, you will have an opportunity to address the Board for 5 minutes.

Regardless of the outcome, we hope you will recognize the important role that a public library plays in a free and open democratic society as a neutral resource for everyone.

Intellectual freedom in a public library necessitates selecting some materials that may be considered controversial by some individuals or groups. Reasons often cited for materials considered offensive include use of profanity, divergent viewpoints, controversial authors, sexual content, and depictions of violence and criminal acts. The acquisition of such materials does not imply approval or endorsement of their contents. The selection criteria used by the St. Tammany Parish Library must remain broad and flexible in order to provide a collection that supports the broad range of interests and diverse backgrounds of the citizens of St. Tammany Parish.

REVIEWS

Kirkus Reviews (04/15/2015):

Moving up in target audience from their explanation of reproduction, What Makes a Baby (2013), Silverberg and Smyth explore various meanings for the word "sex." In their own ways, Zai, Cooper, Mimi, and Omar respond to information in chapters about bodies, "Boys, Girls, All of Us," touch, language, and "Crushes, Love, and Relationships." With skin tones in unlikely shades (blue! purple! green!) and wildly diverse crowd scenes, chances are good that any reader can identify with someone in these pages. Refreshingly, these crowds are diverse in a way that does not appear assembled by checklist. Lively design, bright, clashing colors, cartoon-style illustrations, comic strips, and plenty of humor support the informal, inclusive approach.

Each chapter ends with questions to think and talk about. The author's respect for different approaches to the subject comes through. No actual sexual activities are described except for masturbation, in the chapter that also deals with "secret touches." The gender chapter tells how gender is assigned but notes "there are more than two kinds of bodies." The character Zai doesn't identify as either boy or girl. Illustrations show body parts of kids and grown-ups (nipples, breasts, bottoms, and parts biologically specific to boys or girls) demonstrating wide variety. Puberty will be addressed in a third title. This carefully thought-out explanation may surprise but should be widely appreciated. (glossary) (Nonfiction.7-10) COPYRIGHT(2015) Kirkus Reviews, ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.

Publishers Weekly (06/22/2015):

Silverberg and Smyth follow What Makes a Baby with a highly visual introduction to sex education for older readers, featuring four characters between the ages of eight and 10 with skin in a rainbow of crayon-box colors. Full-page artwork and comics sequences follow the students as they react to discussions of gender, bodies (including what Silverberg calls "middle parts"), touching, and the emotions that lead to sexual contact; the book stops short of getting into the mechanics of intercourse. Throughout, Silverberg invites readers to consider their own feelings through activities and questions ("Why do you think people want to know if a baby is a boy or a girl?"). Emphasizing the importance of trust, respect, justice, and joy--as well as open communication--it's a thoughtful and affirming exploration of relationships, gender identity, and growing sexual awareness. Ages 7-10. (July)

School Library Journal (03/01/2016):

Gr 2-6--Silverberg and Smyth follow up their book for younger readers, What Makes a Baby (Triangle Square, 2013), with this engaging introduction to gender, bodies, and relationships. A diverse cast of cartoon kids--in terms of appearance, ability, and point of view--explore the multiple meanings of the word sex with their teacher, friends, and family members. There is a heavy emphasis on the importance of thinking for oneself and developing one's own opinions. The language is conversational and accessible, as well as direct, fastidiously accurate, and entirely gender-neutral. Each section ends with conversation-provoking questions, reinforcing the suggestion that the book be read and shared in conversation with a trusted adult. What makes this volume exceptional is its introduction of the subjects of transgender identity, intersex conditions, and masturbation. The quality text is enhanced and brought to life by comics drawn with bold lines on bright, full-bleed pages. Smyth's illustrations are interactive, fun, and edifying, presenting a range of body types and diversity. Despite the title, the topic of sexual intercourse is not covered; but Silverberg prepares readers for this information by introducing concepts such as respect, trust, and joy. VERDICT Exciting, enlightening, and innovative, this book addresses timeless questions about sex for a new generation of kids who are increasingly aware of the broad spectrum of gender and sexual identities.--Clara Hendricks, Cambridge Public Library, MA

What Parents Need to Know

Parents need to know that Sex Is a Funny Word: A Book About Bodies, Feelings, and YOU, by Cory Silverberg and illustrated by Fiona Smyth, is a companion book for older kids to 2013's What Makes a Baby. Characters Zai, Cooper, Mimi, and Omar are kids between 8 and 10 years old who approach learning about sex and bodies very differently, affirming the various responses that kid readers might have as they work through the book. Neither reproduction or intercourse is discussed, but masturbation is described. Diagrams, definitions, and explanations explore different meanings of sex, bodies and their sexual organs, gender, touch (including "secret touch"), and relationships. Body-positive messages are communicated in inclusive text and pictures throughout. Skin color is represented in green, orange, pink, purple, blue, etc., while hair, facial features, head coverings, and clothing show a variety of ethnicities, cultures, and genders. Crowd and family scenes depict a wide range of family compositions and people of different ages and abilities. This comprehensive, thoughtful guide to bodies will appeal to older kids who are curious about bodies and, yes, sex.

This book was way too graphic for anyone under the age of 15. It goes into the nitty-gritty about sex, and give to anyone under age 12 that is asking questions about sex or bodies. I also don't approve of their gender fluidity for the kids. I'd be okay if it talked about gender roles being fluid, but not the gender its

What's the Story?

SEX IS A FUNNY WORD opens with a note to adult readers. And then we meet Zai, Cooper, Mimi, and Omar, all ages 8-10, as they're in class beginning a unit on sex. The teacher says that learning about sex is like a carnival: You can't do it all in one day, and it can be fun, strange, and a little scary. The classmates are shown in various situations that relate to each chapter topic like "What Is Sex?" "Learning About Bodies," "Boys, Girls, All of Us," "Touch," and so forth. Comic strips, two-page scenes, diagrams, and explanatory text work together to show and explain terms and ideas. Discussion questions and activity suggestions end each chapter, making this book suitable for educational settings as well as family reading, and a glossary at the end defines terms that are referred to but not named in the book itself (asexual, transgender, etc.).

Is It Any Good?

Not your typical book about sex for kids, this fun, honest volume covers the topic in new and exciting ways. Sex Is a Funny Word provides a framework of foundational information about bodies, gender, and touch, and then invites young readers and their adults to talk to each other in order to "fill in the blanks" with beliefs, values, and connections to family history, culture, and community. This book isn't actually about sex: It's about providing a foundation for kids to understand sex as a big, multifaceted life experience.

Also notable is the book's lack of jargon -- you won't find identity labels or advanced terms in the text (though there is a useful glossary) -- which means that all the different ways we talk about and define ourselves are available to use in the conversations this book will inspire. The interesting, diverse characters and inclusive language and art mean that every reader will be able to see themselves in this book. Fiona Smyth's thick-line cartoon drawings and bold color choices make for a visually absorbing read. This truly modern and open-ended guide about sex, bodies, and touch will help parents and kid readers alike take a thoughtful, relationship-building path toward growing up.

Dear Ms. Schneider,

Thank you for submitting your Statement of Concern regarding Sex is a Funny Word by Cori Silverberg. Per the St. Tammany Library Board of Control's policies and procedures, this correspondence is to notify you of the recommendation of the library staff committee regarding the material referenced in your Statement of Concern.

Pursuant to La. R.S. § 14:91.11, it is unlawful for any St. Tammany Library to display, exhibit, disseminate, check-out, or otherwise provide any minor anything that constitutes material harmful to minors by law. However, materials are only deemed harmful to minors if all four (4) of the following apply beyond a reasonable doubt:

1. First, the material must exploit, be devoted to, or principally consist of "descriptions or depictions of illicit sex or sexual immorality." To be "descriptions or depictions of illicit or sexual immorality," the material must convey ultimate sex acts, masturbation or excretory functions, lewd exhibition of private areas, sadomasochistic abuse, sexual intimacy via physical acts of private areas, or stimulation of human genitalia.
2. Second, the material must incite, appeal to, or be designed to incite or appeal to "the prurient, shameful, or morbid interest of minors," i.e., a sexual response over and beyond those that would be characterized as normal for a minor.
3. Third, the material must be "offensive to the average adult applying contemporary community standards with respect to what is suitable for minors." These standards are not defined or limited by any specific geographic area.
4. Fourth, the material, when considered in its entirety (including both objectionable and nonobjectionable parts), must lack any "literary, artistic, political, or scientific value for minors." If any of the foregoing requirements are not met, the material is not unlawful under La. R.S. §14:91.11.

Importantly, the statute defines "minor" as "any person under the age of eighteen years." Thus, the last three (3) elements above must be considered in that context, e.g., "The material taken as a whole [must] lack serious literary, artistic, political, or scientific value for [any person under the age of eighteen years].” Additionally, if materials that qualify as harmful to minors are not sold, distributed, advertised, or otherwise distributed to minors, it is permissible under the law to have them available for adults to do so, as long as the minors are unable to see, “as displayed,” descriptions or depictions of illicit sex or sexual immorality.”

Under this analysis, the staff committee determined that the material at issue in your Statement of Concern does not qualify as unlawfully harmful to minors.

1. It does not primarily consist of or is devoted to the sexual acts described in the law. The book does not contain any ultimate sex acts. There are two pages about masturbation and there is a section showing body parts, however the portrayal is not lewd.
2. It does not incite or appeal to or is designed to incite or appeal to the prurient, shameful, or morbid interest of minors. The illustrations, text, and format are meant to catch the interest on a level appropriate for children of puberty age. The images of body parts are not in detail. The images of genitals are focused on without the rest of the body shown. The purpose of showing the variety of genitals is to portray the wide variety of human forms that are considered “normal.”
3. It is not offensive to the average adult applying contemporary community standards with respect to what is suitable for minors. The book has a steady circulation rate at STPL. It is held in Juvenile Non-Fiction in over 1000 other public libraries across the country, including Jefferson Parish Public Library and the Mobile Public Library (Alabama.) Our ownership of the book is consistent with our peer library systems.
4. The material taken as a whole does not lack serious literary, artistic, political, or scientific value for minors. The book has education value as it discusses hygiene and correct medical terms for body parts. It also discusses the emotional and social aspects of first relationships, concepts not often discussed in books for this target age audience. The book has artistic value with colorful and amusing pictures. The unnatural colors of the humans shows universality.

When the book was purchased the library recognized the topical nature of the book and placed it into children’s non-fiction. However, the book is published in “graphic novel” format and is now shelved behind the circulation desk and only available to minors who have a parent authorized Juvenile or Juvenile Unrestricted library card per the directive of the Library Board of Control’s resolution regarding graphic novels on February 28th, 2023.

You specifically commented that the book's content was "pornographic." After reviewing the book and discussion, it was determined that, in the opinion of the committee members, the book does not violate the statute nor is it pornography. The committee further recommends that the book should be retained and continue to be shelved behind the circulation desk per the directive of the LBOC.

You also specifically asked "that a separate board be formed comprised of parents and teachers to review these books prior to purchase." Books and other materials are purchased by trained professionals using a variety of tools and who are themselves members of the St. Tammany community. In order to increase transparency, the LBOC - who are members of the St. Tammany community, appointed by the Parish President and Parish Council, and currently includes parents and educators - will be reviewing and making decisions about all challenged materials.

While we recognize that some may find the material in question not suitable for their family, that alone does not render it unlawful and does not warrant censoring the public at large from accessing and/or checking out the material. Parents are the ultimate deciders of which books and media their children will consume. REVIEWS

Kirkus Reviews (04/15/2015):

Moving up in target audience from their explanation of reproduction, What Makes a Baby (2013), Silverberg and Smyth explore various meanings for the word "sex." In their own ways, Zai, Cooper, Mimi, and Omar respond to information in chapters about bodies, "Boys, Girls, All of Us," touch, language, and "Crushes, Love, and Relationships." With skin tones in unlikely shades (blue! purple! green!) and wildly diverse crowd scenes, chances are good that any reader can identify with someone in these pages. Refreshingly, these crowds are diverse in a way that does not appear assembled by checklist. Lively design, bright, clashing colors, cartoon-style illustrations, comic strips, and plenty of humor support the informal, inclusive approach.

Each chapter ends with questions to think and talk about. The author's respect for different approaches to the subject comes through. No actual sexual activities are described except for masturbation, in the chapter that also deals with "secret touches." The gender chapter tells how gender is assigned but notes "there are more than two kinds of bodies." The character Zai doesn't identify as either boy or girl. Illustrations show body parts of kids and grown-ups (nipples, breasts, bottoms, and parts biologically specific to boys or girls) demonstrating wide variety. Puberty will be addressed in a third title. This carefully thought-out explanation may surprise but should be widely appreciated. Publishers Weekly (06/22/2015):

Silverberg and Smyth follow What Makes a Baby with a highly visual introduction to sex education for older readers, featuring four characters between the ages of eight and 10 with skin in a rainbow of crayon-box colors. Full-page artwork and comics sequences follow the students as they react to discussions of gender, bodies (including what Silverberg calls "middle parts"), touching, and the emotions that lead to sexual contact; the book stops short of getting into the mechanics of intercourse. Throughout, Silverberg invites readers to consider their own feelings through activities and questions ("Why do you think people want to know if a baby is a boy or a girl?"). Emphasizing the importance of trust, respect, justice, and joy--as well as open communication--it's a thoughtful and affirming exploration of relationships, gender identity, and growing sexual awareness. Ages 7-10. (July)

School Library Journal (03/01/2016):

Gr 2-6--Silverberg and Smyth follow up their book for younger readers, What Makes a Baby (Triangle Square, 2013), with this engaging introduction to gender, bodies, and relationships. A diverse cast of cartoon kids--in terms of appearance, ability, and point of view--explore the multiple meanings of the word sex with their teacher, friends, and family members. There is a heavy emphasis on the importance of thinking for oneself and developing one's own opinions. The language is conversational and accessible, as well as direct, fastidiously accurate, and entirely gender-neutral. Each section ends with conversation-provoking questions, reinforcing the suggestion that the book be read and shared in conversation with a trusted adult. What makes this volume exceptional is its introduction of the subjects of transgender identity, intersex conditions, and masturbation. The quality text is enhanced and brought to life by comics drawn with bold lines on bright, full-bleed pages. Smyth's illustrations are interactive, fun, and edifying, presenting a range of body types and diversity. Despite the title, the topic of sexual intercourse is not covered; but Silverberg prepares readers for this information by introducing concepts such as respect, trust, and joy. VERDICT Exciting, enlightening, and innovative, this book addresses timeless questions about sex for a new generation of kids who are increasingly aware of the broad spectrum of gender and sexual identities.--Clara Hendricks, Cambridge Public Library, MA

What Parents Need to Know

Parents need to know that Sex Is a Funny Word: A Book About Bodies, Feelings, and YOU, by Cory Silverberg and illustrated by Fiona Smyth, is a companion book for older kids to 2013's What Makes a Baby. Characters Zai, Cooper, Mimi, and Omar are kids between 8 and 10 years old who approach learning about sex and bodies very differently, affirming the various responses that kid readers might have as they work through the book. Neither reproduction or intercourse is discussed, but masturbation is described. Diagrams, definitions, and explanations explore different meanings of sex, bodies and their sexual organs, gender, touch (including "secret touch"), and relationships. Body-positive messages are communicated in inclusive text and pictures throughout. Skin color is represented in green, orange, pink, purple, blue, etc., while hair, facial features, head coverings, and clothing show a variety of ethnicities, cultures, and genders. Crowd and family scenes depict a wide range of family compositions and people of different ages and abilities. This comprehensive, thoughtful guide to bodies will appeal to older kids who are curious about bodies and, yes, sex.

This book was way too graphic for anyone under the age of 15. It goes into the nitty-gritty about sex, and give to anyone under age 12 that is asking questions about sex or bodies. I also don't approve of their gender fluidity for the kids. I'd be okay if it talked about gender roles being fluid, but not the gender its

What's the Story?

SEX IS A FUNNY WORD opens with a note to adult readers. And then we meet Zai, Cooper, Mimi, and Omar, all ages 8-10, as they're in class beginning a unit on sex. The teacher says that learning about sex is like a carnival: You can't do it all in one day, and it can be fun, strange, and a little scary. The classmates are shown in various situations that relate to each chapter topic like "What Is Sex?" "Learning About Bodies," "Boys, Girls, All of Us," "Touch," and so forth. Comic strips, two-page scenes, diagrams, and explanatory text work together to show and explain terms and ideas. Discussion questions and activity suggestions end each chapter, making this book suitable for educational settings as well as family reading, and a glossary at the end defines terms that are referred to but not named in the book itself (asexual, transgender, etc.).

Is It Any Good?

Not your typical book about sex for kids, this fun, honest volume covers the topic in new and exciting ways. Sex Is a Funny Word provides a framework of foundational information about bodies, gender, and touch, and then invites young readers and their adults to talk to each other in order to "fill in the blanks" with beliefs, values, and connections to family history, culture, and community. This book isn't actually about sex: It's about providing a foundation for kids to understand sex as a big, multifaceted life experience.

Also notable is the book's lack of jargon -- you won't find identity labels or advanced terms in the text (though there is a useful glossary) -- which means that all the different ways we talk about and define ourselves are available to use in the conversations this book will inspire. The interesting, diverse characters and inclusive language and art mean that every reader will be able to see themselves in this book. Fiona Smyth's thick-line cartoon drawings and bold color choices make for a visually absorbing read. This truly modern and open-ended guide about sex, bodies, and touch will help parents and kid readers alike take a thoughtful, relationship-building path toward growing up.

Slidell, LA 70461

Dear Ms. Smith,

Thank you for submitting your Statement of Concern regarding Sex is a Funny Word by Cori Silverberg. Per the St. Tammany Library Board of Control's policies and procedures, this correspondence is to notify you of the recommendation of the library staff committee regarding the material referenced in your Statement of Concern.

Pursuant to La. R.S. § 14:91.11, it is unlawful for any St. Tammany Library to display, exhibit, disseminate, check-out, or otherwise provide any minor anything that constitutes material harmful to minors by law. However, materials are only deemed harmful to minors if all four (4) of the following apply beyond a reasonable doubt:

1. First, the material must exploit, be devoted to, or principally consist of "descriptions or depictions of illicit sex or sexual immorality." To be "descriptions or depictions of illicit or sexual immorality," the material must convey ultimate sex acts, masturbation or excretory functions, lewd exhibition of private areas, sadomasochistic abuse, sexual intimacy via physical acts of private areas, or stimulation of human genitalia.
2. Second, the material must incite, appeal to, or be designed to incite or appeal to "the prurient, shameful, or morbid interest of minors," i.e., a sexual response over and beyond those that would be characterized as normal for a minor.
3. Third, the material must be "offensive to the average adult applying contemporary community standards with respect to what is suitable for minors." These standards are not defined or limited by any specific geographic area.
4. Fourth, the material, when considered in its entirety (including both objectionable and nonobjectionable parts), must lack any "literary, artistic, political, or scientific value for minors." If any of the foregoing requirements are not met, the material is not unlawful under La. R.S. §14:91.11.

Importantly, the statute defines "minor" as "any person under the age of eighteen years." Thus, the last three (3) elements above must be considered in that context, e.g., "The material taken as a whole [must] lack serious literary, artistic, political, or scientific value for [any person under the age of eighteen years].” Additionally, if materials that qualify as harmful to minors are not sold, distributed, advertised, or otherwise distributed to minors, it is permissible under the law to have them available for adults to do so, as long as the minors are unable to see, “as displayed,” descriptions or depictions of illicit sex or sexual immorality.”

Under this analysis, the staff committee determined that the material at issue in your Statement of Concern does not qualify as unlawfully harmful to minors.

1. It does not primarily consist of or is devoted to the sexual acts described in the law. The book does not contain any ultimate sex acts. There are two pages about masturbation and there is a section showing body parts, however the portrayal is not lewd.
2. It does not incite or appeal to or is designed to incite or appeal to the prurient, shameful, or morbid interest of minors. The illustrations, text, and format are meant to catch the interest on a level appropriate for children of puberty age. The images of body parts are not in detail. The images of genitals are focused on without the rest of the body shown. The purpose of showing the variety of genitals is to portray the wide variety of human forms that are considered “normal.”
3. It is not offensive to the average adult applying contemporary community standards with respect to what is suitable for minors. The book has a steady circulation rate at STPL. It is held in Juvenile Non-Fiction in over 1000 other public libraries across the country, including Jefferson Parish Public Library and the Mobile Public Library (Alabama.) Our ownership of the book is consistent with our peer library systems.
4. The material taken as a whole does not lack serious literary, artistic, political, or scientific value for minors. The book has education value as it discusses hygiene and correct medical terms for body parts. It also discusses the emotional and social aspects of first relationships, concepts not often discussed in books for this target age audience. The book has artistic value with colorful and amusing pictures. The unnatural colors of the humans shows universality.

When the book was purchased the library recognized the topical nature of the book and placed it into children’s non-fiction. However, the book is published in “graphic novel” format and is now shelved behind the circulation desk and only available to minors who have a parent authorized Juvenile or Juvenile Unrestricted library card per the directive of the Library Board of Control's resolution regarding graphic novels on February 28th, 2023.

You asked specifically that this book be "removed from the library" and that it was "pornography." After reviewing the book and discussion, it was determined that, in the opinion of the committee members, the book does not violate the statute nor is it pornography. The committee further recommends that the book should be retained and continue to be shelved behind the circulation desk per the directive of the LBOC.

While we recognize that some may find the material in question not suitable for their family, that alone does not render it unlawful and does not warrant censoring the public at large from accessing and/or checking out the material. Parents are the ultimate deciders of which books and media their children will consume. At the same time, we do acknowledge that this book may not be in line with the values of all families in the Parish. The purchase of any item by the St. Tammany Parish Library is not an affirmation of the content of the item, and each family in our Parish has the right and responsibility to make decisions regarding what their own children will read or hear.

The committee's report and recommendation will be made available to the St. Tammany Library Control Board, which shall make the ultimate determination based thereupon at a special meeting scheduled on May 1st, 2023, at 6:30 pm at the St. Tammany Parish Council Chambers where it will be on the agenda. At that meeting, you will have an opportunity to address the Board for 5 minutes.

Regardless of the outcome, we hope you will recognize the important role that a public library plays in a free and open democratic society as a neutral resource for everyone.

Respectfully,

Kelly LaRocca, Director

Statement of Concern about Library Resources

Intellectual freedom in a public library necessitates selecting some materials that may be considered controversial by some individuals or groups. Reasons often cited for materials considered offensive include use of profanity, divergent viewpoints, controversial authors, sexual content, and depictions of violence and criminal acts. The acquisition of such materials does not imply approval or endorsement of their contents. The selection criteria used by the St. Tammany Parish Library must remain broad and flexible in order to provide a collection that supports the broad range of interests and diverse backgrounds of the citizens of St. Tammany Parish.

REVIEWS

Kirkus Reviews (07/15/2011):

A family outing to the beach provides the opportunity for a discussion of the similarities and differences between boys and girls. In a conversation between a pair of mixed-race preschoolers securely strapped in their car seats, Nellie's play on the words "everybody" and "every body" leads Gus to wondering about body parts. Their beach visit provides an opportunity to see a variety of people and puppies, to itemize all the parts that boys and girls and dogs have in common (head, cheek, belly button, tummy, toes, etc.) and learn about those that are different. Harris (It's Not the Stork!, 2006, etc.) matter-of-factly combines common childhood language--"opening where poop comes out"--and anatomically correct terms such as vagina, penis and scrotum. The children's parents explain interior organs (appropriately placed boxes reveal what's inside) while applying sunscreen. Some information is conveyed in text, some in speech balloons or labels. Westcott's digital cartoonlike illustrations show different compositions of families representing a wide range of ages, races and nationalities. They include a very pregnant mother in a bathing suit, as well as, appropriately shaded by beach umbrellas, a woman discreetly nursing a baby and a man giving a bottle to his.

This much-needed title stands out for its comfortably familiar presentation of material adults sometime find difficult to share with young children. (Informational picture book. 2-6)

Publishers Weekly (07/25/2011):

Harris, the guardian angel of parents facing their school-age child's questions about sex, tackles the preschool set in this first book in the Let's Talk About You and Me series. Readers follow Gus and his older sister, Nellie, on a family trip to the beach; the relaxed environment enables Westcott to riff on the central theme that "Everybody everywhere has a body!" and to show Gus and Nellie's anatomy (including key internal organs) as they change into swimsuits. Harris understands just how much her audience wants and needs to know about sex: adult bodies are out, family dogs are in ("Hey, boy puppies have a penis too," notes Gus). The text is somewhat repetitious, and the dialogue forced and chirpy as Harris delineates everything, body parts and otherwise, that makes boys and girls similar and different ("Boys and girls like to catch frogs, swing high up in the air, ride scooters, and make a lot of noise"). Nonetheless, it's a sunny, useful introduction to anatomy that kicks some gender stereotypes to the curb in the process. Ages 26. (Sept.) Copyright 2011 Publishers Weekly Used with permission.

Bulletin of Ctr for Child Bks (10/01/2011):

Harris has been bringing her comprehensive yet light-hearted approach to sex education to younger and younger children, and unless she has a prenatal audience in mind for the future, here she hits the end of the road. Preschooler Nellie and her younger brother Gus are off with their parents for a day at the beach. The siblings' chatter turns to bodies, their similarities and differences, and as they make observations about the preponderance of commonality (with, of course, a few striking and important gender differences), the narrator's voice supplies commentary on how internal and external genitalia may someday figure into motherhood and fatherhood. The particulars of conception are left for another day and another title (quite likely Harris' own It's Not the Stork!, BCCB 10/06), and the steady focus on identifying body parts makes the territory below the swimsuits seem little more mysterious or significant than eyes and elbows and ankles. Although the children's remarks sometimes feel a bit clunky and forced, the beach provides a natural setting for generating "the discussion": the changing rooms afford the opportunity to check out everybody's parts as they shimmy in and out of swimwear, while subtly underscoring the privacy altogether appropriate for the, well, altogether. Westcott's bouncy cartoon cast is thoroughly multicultural, with Nellie and Gus the creamy-skinned offspring of a biracial couple and beachgoers representing just about every demographic under the blazing summer sun. With this appealing new title, families can now choose from among an almost seamless step-up series. EB

Booklist (09/01/2011):

Preschool-G Starred Review Harris' oft-challenged It's Perfectly Normal (1994), It's So Amazing! (1999), and It's Not the Stork! (2006) each address a different age group of children. This newest outing aims for the youngest set yet (an injury is called a boo-boo), though most parents should plan to read the words aloud and offer clarification. As always, Harris' tone is cheerful and confident, introducing an interracial couple and their two children as they hit the beach, repeating one message: Every girl has a body. Every boy has a body. Every grown-up has a body. The kids are not sure who has what, which leads to a series of short, clear explanations, with little arrows pointing out each body part, whether they are the same (cheek, chin) or different. Changing into swimwear provides the opportunity to point out the primary physical differences: Girls have an opening to the vagina, and an opening where pee comes out. Unobtrusive X-rays show interior views, while pet dogs are there for further anatomical comparison. Westcott's bright digital illustrations keep the affair as breezy and nonshocking as possible just as it should be. Expect the usual outcry, as well as the usual demand. (Reprinted with permission of Booklist, copyright 2011, American Library Association.)

School Library Journal (10/01/2011):

PreS-Gr 2--This is a straightforward presentation, as told through simple exposition and the dialogue of a young girl and boy who are going to the beach for the day. As the youngsters chat with one another about their similarities and differences, readers are greeted with visually appealing cartoonlike drawings that depict an array of people in various family groupings. As the two children change in their separate cabanas, arrows point to and name the parts of their bodies that distinguish them as male or female. A dog (of the same sex as the child) has crept into each child's cabana so its parts are labeled, too. Correct terminology is used, e.g., vagina, scrotum, penis, ovary, uterus, but Harris does not delve into how these body parts function, and she doesn't address the reproductive process. The book serves as a great way to introduce male and female body parts for anyone not used to discussing or naming them. For a more comprehensive look at body parts, reproduction, and birth, check out Harris's It's Not the Stork! (Candlewick, 2006).--Maggie Chase, Boise State University, ID

Horn Book Magazine (11/01/2011):

Sexpert for the under-twelve set Harris (It's Perfectly Normal, rev. 3/95; It's So Amazing!, rev. 1/00; and others) here explains to young children how boys and girls are a lot alike but also anatomically different. A biracial brother and sister start the conversation while buckled into car seats on the way to the beach. "Girls and boys are different -- right, Nellie?" the little brother begins, which prompts his sister to wonder, "Or -- are we mostly the same?" Out the car window, Westcott's friendly ink-and-watercolor illustrations depict a playground where boys and girls both "like to catch frogs, swing high up in the air, ride scooters, and make a lot of noise." Harris gradually moves from personality traits to physical characteristics, and, at the beach, Westcott labels shared parts -- eye, ear, nose, mouth, etc. -- on the kids and two dogs. The book very naturally introduces differences as the siblings, separately, change into their swimsuits. Readers are shown the various male and female "openings" (e.g., the "opening where pee comes out") for both humans and canines and given the anatomical terms for exterior and interior sex organs. (Since most dogs in this country are neutered, parents might have some explaining to do.) The overall tone is lighthearted but never too silly. There's no description of how babies are made, though there's mention of how girls can grow up to be mommies and boys can grow up to be daddies. But, happily, "Growing from a baby to a kid to a grown-up takes a long, long, long time," because now it's time to play! christine m. heppermann(Copyright 2011 by The Horn Book, Incorporated, Boston. Dear Ms. Phillips,

Thank you for submitting your Statement of Concern regarding Who Has What by Robie H. Harris. Per the St. Tammany Library Board of Control's policies and procedures, this correspondence is to notify you of the recommendation of the library staff committee regarding the material referenced in your Statement of Concern.

The author is a New York Times best selling author and is a well known non-fiction writer for children. The book received favorable reviews. The Library purchased the book in 2011 and it has circulated 145 times. The book is informational with all body parts labeled. It is meant for parents to use to have a conversation with their child. The committee noted that the "girl" and "boy" parts images with corresponding labels are on separate page spreads.

In your statement of concern you specifically asked that it be available upon request and not "lying around willy nilly when we are at the library to read about trains, planes, and automobiles." This book is in picture book format but is shelved in the Juvenile Non-Fiction section under call number J612.6 with other books on human physiology, not in the browsable Picture Book section. The Juvenile Non-Fiction call number makes it easy for parents to find, but is not easily accessible to a young child.

The committee felt that putting the book behind the circulation desk permanently or in a restricted area would be a hinderance to parents. They may not have time to wait for the book to be paged from behind the desk, they might be embarrassed to ask for the book, and they would not have the opportunity to compare books on the subject to determine which book is the best for their family. STPL's policy for placement of a book is based on the subject matter and the intended audience, not by directive of the American Library Association.

It is held in Juvenile Non-Fiction in over 900 other public libraries across the country, including Jefferson Parish Public Library, Tangipahoa Parish Library, Jackson-George Regional Library (Gulf Coast Mississippi), and the Mobile Public Library (Alabama.) Our placement is consistent with our peer library systems. After reviewing the book and discussion, it was determined that, in the opinion of the committee members, the book is shelved in the appropriate section of the library.

While we recognize that some may find the material in question not suitable for themselves or their family, that alone does not warrant censoring or hindering the public at large from accessing and/or checking out the material. Parents are the ultimate deciders of which books and media their children will consume. At the same time, we do acknowledge that this book may not be in line with the values of all families in the Parish. The purchase of any item by the St. Tammany Parish Library is not an affirmation of the content of the item and each family in our Parish has the right and responsibility to make decisions regarding what they and their own children will read or hear.

The committee's report and recommendation will be made available to the St. Tammany Library Control Board, which shall make the ultimate determination based thereupon at a special meeting scheduled on May 1st, 2023, at 6:30 pm at the St. Tammany Parish Council Chambers where it will be on the agenda. At that meeting, you will have an opportunity to address the Board for 5 minutes.

Regardless of the outcome, we hope you will recognize the important role that a public library plays in a free and open democratic society as a neutral resource for everyone.

Respectfully,

Kelly LaRocca, Director

Strategic Planning Committee Update

Action planning training was held on April 26th over zoom. Carson Block and Susan Kent presented to 32 staff members and recorded the session so that any staff that wish are able to participate in our strategic planning action plans for this year.

We will be asking staff for volunteers to work on action plans for each of the goals. We hope to have the first working group meetings over the next month.

Rules and Regulations Committee Update

The Rules and Regulations Committee met on May 4th and May 16th. The committee worked on Section 205 Materials Display.

Our next meeting will be on May 23rd at 12:00 pm at the Causeway Branch.

Library Foundation Update

The St. Tammany Library Foundation was pleased to host its 6th annual Distinguished Speaker Series at the Beau Chene Country Club on April 26, 2023 featuring Emilie Rhys as its distinguished speaker. The final numbers are not in yet, but the Foundation estimates to have made approximately $11,000.00 from the event.

The Foundation board met in May before it breaks for June and July, but has already discussed plans to expand its general membership through social media avenues in the Fall. The Board has also begun planning for the next speaker for the 7th annual Distinguished Speaker Series which is our largest fundraiser each year.

At the May meeting, The President of Foundation received the invoice for the Ozobots that were approved by the Foundation Board in Fall of 2022. The Foundation looks forward to working with the Library to identify additional projects it can fund to aid our community libraries.
