moving books behind the counter will be prohibitive in exercising empathy and finding community as authors Malorie Blackman and CS Lewis have both noted are the beauty of books. Someone seeking to understand a topic or experience a journey will likely struggle to ask for a book when a loud yet small unit of our community is trying to shroud these books in shame. Putting a book behind the counter is still censorship, just with prettier packaging.

Banning books and adding useless oversight boards is just another layer of censorship & bureaucratic complexity from extreme groups. The premise of libraries is to educate and this violates free speech and thought.

We should trust our librarians to make decisions on how to run our libraries! Censoring is a moral/political flaw that has no place in our society. I support no change to the way the library is currently managed.

I am also here tonight to object to age old classic books & reading material being removed from the library. Children should come to love children's authors like Mark Twain & others. They need exposure to wholesome reading and to the Creation Story as well as the Christian world view -

Sequestering graphic novels behind the circ desk ruins the serendipity of the print collection and will further stigmatize those library users wishing to read about so-called "controversial" topics.

My community, the LGBTQIA+ community, should be allowed to exist in literature with access to all. Our identities and orientations are not "perverted" b/c we are not cis-gendered and/or heterosexual, and banning our books because of a ~~not~~ biased, oppressive opinion is an act of violence and denies our existence.

Libraries are for everyone - not just one belief system or side of the political spectrum.
It is the responsibility of parents, not librarians, to determine what books their children should be allowed to read. Knowledge should not be restricted because one individual or group decides it is inappropriate - those who have subscribed to this belief have always been on the wrong side of history. Knowledge accessibility belongs to all of us, regardless of sexuality or gender identity.

I'm here tonight to express my concern about our children & young people being exploited through exposure to inappropriate reading material in our libraries. Our younger generations are being exposed to subjects that their immature emotional & physical levels cannot handle. Why plant dangerous seeds of confusion in our children regarding sex? They are incapable of making decisions about such things until much older. Let them be children until they reach age of maturity -
